FIERCE FLAMES

Consume the Exchange Building at Chicago.

A Floor Falls, Carrying With It Six Firemen.

Brave Rescue of a Girl by Captain Hermanson—Loss Estimated at $400,000.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—This morning a disastrous fire broke out in the Exchange building at Van Buren and Market streets. Several persons were injured. Among them were: Nellie Turner, 209 North Centre avenue, jumped from a third story window. Internal injuries and will die. Removed to hospital. Kittie Landgraff, jumped from the fourth story window. Internally injured and will probably die. Taken to the county hospital.

The fire broke out in the seven story terra cotta building at No. 276 to 278 Market street, extending in an "L" to VanBuren street. The first and second floors were occupied by Stein & Beirs, clothing; the third and fourth by Henry Newman, clothing; fifth, Amazon Clothing company; sixth, Fallows & Co., collars and cuffs; seventh, Townsend & Gate, clothing and dry goods, and the National Thread company. The building will probably be entirely destroyed with all its contents.

Each of the firms employed women and as soon as the presence of the fire was made known all were thrown into a state of great excitement. Panic reigned everywhere, and before some of the girls could be restrained they had climbed out of the windows and jumped.

One of the first to appear at the third story window was Nellie Turner. She screamed for help and some one on the ground shouted for her to jump. She did not do this, however, and left the window. A moment later she appeared at another, near a fire escape, and climbed upon the sill. She clung to the fire escape and commenced to descend. Officer Flaherty was also on the escape between the first and second stories, and when he saw the girl above him he started up to aid her. He was too late. She suddenly lost her balance and fell headlong to the street. Officer Flaherty tried to catch her, but could not reach her. She was picked up almost unconscious. The injured girl was carried into a drug store and stimulants were administered, but she did not revive. She was removed to the county hospital.

The building cost $150,000, and was insured for $120 000.

Harry Neil, 1029 West Van Buren street, seventeen years old, jumped from the fourth story window and internally injured himself.

The fire seemed to have broken loose on several floors in the big building at the same instant, so rapidly did it spread.

The fire started on the fourth floor, it is thought, in rooms occupied by Stein & Biers. Thirty girls were employed there and they all made frantic efforts to escape. Among the first to come to their aid was "Joe," the janitor of the building. He assured the girls that if they would remain quiet and composed they would all get out safely. He led as many of them as he could induce to accompany him to the main stairway and they reached the street without injury. Those who remained behind, however, fared worse. The additional injured are: Aggie McLain, fourteen years old; Hattie Brennan, Edna Rittert, Mary Pinto, Olga Kellar; the missing: John Gruenheimer.

The escape of Olga Kellar, of 575 Waubausia avenue, is regarded as marvelous by those who saw her when she appeared at a fourth story window. She was employed by Stein & Biers, and when the room in which she was working began to fill with smoke, she ran to one of the windows overlooking VanBuren street. She threw up the sash and climbed out on the ledge, clinging with one hand to the narrow strip of wood on the outside of the sash. She saw a few feet below her the ladder on which two firemen stood, and she prepared to jump.

"Wait, don't jump," shouted Captain Hermanson, who had almost reached the window. Great volumes of smoke poured out of the window where the girl stood, and at times her form was entirely obscured. To the hundreds of persons who were watching from the street, the seconds seemed like hours. Cheer after cheer went up for Captain Hermanson as he climbed up. He had almost reached the woman when he suddenly stopped. No one on the street knew the cause. He had heard the girl scream, and as he looked up he saw her reel and release her hold on the window siding. She had been overcome by the smoke and had fallen. Captain Hermanson braced himself, and as the unconscious form dropped, he seized it with his right arm. The effort nearly cost him his own life, for he narrowly escaped falling. From hundreds of throats cheers were heard as the brave captain descended the ladder with his human burden. He was greeted with unmistakable signs of approval as he carried the girl across the street into a drug store. She was unconscious, but a physician said she would recover.

The loss of building and to the tenants is estimated at from $350 000 to $400,000. The building was insured for $120,000. A few minutes before 1 o'clock the second and third floors fell, carrying with them the first. On the latter six members of engine company No. 2 were working. They were Capt. Louis Feine, his lieutenant and four linemen. All were buried in the basement, where the three floors fell, and it is believed all were killed.

LATER

The following is a list of those known to be dead:

Lieut. Patrick McDonald.
Martin Sherrick.
John Downe.
John Prendergast.

Their bodies are still in the ruins.

The firemen have located the bodies but cannot get them out.

The fire broke out afresh while the rescuers were at work, and the water had to be turned on.

Kittie Langdraf, who jumped from the building, has since died. Several others may die before morning. Captain Fiene, who was thought to have been burned, escaped injury.

GRAVE FEARS

Are Inspired by the Condition of Affairs in Turkey.

The Powers Want Additional Vessels in the Bosphorus—Reports of Further Massacres.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 22.—The general situation in this country continues to inspire the gravest fears. Telegrams received here from Marasch late yesterday, apparently considerably delayed by the Turkish officials, say that the American and other missionaries there are again in the greatest danger.

The Armenians of this city who can be prevailed upon to talk on the subject intimate that a surprise for the Turks is being prepared at Zeitoun and that a battle which will make history and show that the Armenians are entitled to freedom, or at least self-government, will be fought there. As, however, the Armenians are deficient in artillery, it cannot reasonably be expected that they can offer an effective resistance to a regularly organized expedition.

Rumors of fresh troubles at Samsoon, a seaport of Asia Minor, in the Black sea, have also reached here. The population of Samsoon is almost entirely composed of Turks, and the Armenians there are certain to fare badly if an uprising has occurred.

Probably the most serious feature of the situation at present is the one resulting from the demand which the representatives of Great Britian, Russia, Italy and Austria made to the sultan for firmans allowing the passage through the Dardanells to this city of a second dispatch boat, or small gun boat, to be attached to each of their respective embassies. As the powers consider that an increase of the number of foreign warships in the Bosphorus is absolutely necessary for the safety of foreigners in this vicinity, it is possible that they may insist upon their demand, and, in case of a refusal may take steps to send the additional warships without the permission of the sultan.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—A dispatch from Constantinople today says that twenty villages have been burned in the northwestern portion of the district of Alepho and that the inhabitants have been massacred. The dispatch adds that the Kurds are gathering on the borders of the Euphrates, preparing to march into Syria for the purpose of massacreing the Christians.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Electric Cars Crash Into Each Other at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 22.—A narrow escape from another frightful bridge disaster occurred at 2:30 o'clock this morning on the Superior street viaduct. Three street cars were waiting for the draw to be closed. While the motormen were waiting for the draw to swing they deserted their posts of duty and were gossiping among themselves when the rear car started up at a lively rate of speed. When the motorman left his car, the safety cut off had shut off the current and the man did not turn the lever so that the car would not start up. Suddenly the current started again and the street car bounded forward and crashed into the other car. The struggle of the panic-stricken people inside the cars to escape was fearful.

Mrs. George Schindler, the wife of Assistant Police Prosecuting Attorney Schindler, was badly injured in jumping and was removed to her home in an ambulance. Other women fainted and had to be taken away in carriages or ambulances.

Found This Time. Sure.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 22.—Francis Schlatter, "the healer," who mysteriously disappeared in the night eight days ago, has at last been positively located. He is resting in seclusion on Joseph Wolf's fruit farm, near Boulder, Col., and it is presumed that he is fasting. The man riding a gray horse in the southern part of the state, who pretends to be Schlatter, is an imposter.

Ex-Senator Ingalls Ill.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 22.—Ex-Senator J. J. Ingalls, of Kansas, was to have lectured in the Central Presbyterian church here last night, but a telegram came late in the afternoon from him at Colorado Springs saying that he had been taken ill and should start for home at once. Nothing is known here of the cause of his illness.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Knights of Labor general assembly today selected Rochester, N. Y., as the place for holding its next annual meeting

AID FOR CUBA URGED.

Governor Matthews Speaks at Philadelphia.

In a Meeting of Sympathizers He Declares in Favor of at Least Granting Belligerent Rights.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 22.—The strongest and most outspoken expressions of sympathy for Cuba yet made in this city were heard last night at a meeting held in the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Philadelphia brigade and in aid of their Antietam monument fund. The speakers were Governor Matthews, of Indiana; Gen. Gonzalio De Quesada, secretary of the revolutionary party in the United States, and Capt. W. W. Ker, owner of the steamer Laurada. Strong resolutions were adopted, calling upon congress immediately after convening to request President Cleveland to recognize the Cuban republic without delay. General Palma, minister plenipotentiary of the Cuban republic, and a number of prominent local Cubans were present.

When Governor Matthews arose to speak he was greeted with cheers for himself as well as for Cuba. In opening he referred to the significance of a meeting of "citizens of a great free republic, who, with the memories of struggles past and victories won in the sacred name of liberty" gathered with grateful hearts beating in purest sympathy with a people struggling to be free. He then recited the wrongs which the Cuban patriots have suffered for generations, wrongs more cruel, crimes more atrocious and oppressive, more wicked than had ever been perpetrated on other people, and he continued:

The wrongs against which we rebelled were not half so grievous, nor the barbarous cruelties nearly so great; and yet the same great principles are involved that aroused to action our fathers in 1776. Revolution has followed revolution, but all to no avail, because from Cuba's peculiar position the armed vessels of Spain have closed her people in from all the world. Defeated often have they been, and put off with promises of reform which never were kept, and with promises of representation in the national cortes; yet their representatives knocking at the door have been laughed to scorn, and the native Cuban has had no voice in the humblest affairs of government. Yet, with all disadvantages, the Cuban patriot has been brave and has fought a good fight. From the walls of every city and hamlet, from every forest and plain, the blood of her patriots, and of innocent women and children, cry aloud for sympathy and for justice.

Her sons have inhaled the atmosphere of this liberty-loving country, and their souls have been enkindled with the fires which we have lighted. Cuba presents a long list of martyrs to liberty—brave, self-sacrificing and undaunted heroes who have fallen for their country's cause. Our close neighbor, we can almost hear her agonizing cry for help across the narrow channel, and the sounds of battle carrying the salvation of Cuba, or again sealing her defeat for years to come. Is it not time that these struggling freemen should have thrown around them the protection, at least, that may come to recognized belligerents? Would it not be most fitting that a people affording the greatest example of free government which the world has ever known should be the first to accord such rights to a people seeking that which we already have—a people geographically and through every commercial and industrial interest inseparrbly connected with our own and the other American republics?

There often comes a time in the lives of nations, as well as of men, when it becomes necessary to walk in new, untrodden paths; to brush aside the cobwebs of tradition which but obscure the view; to grasp great living thoughts, and meet the problems of a growing, progressive age—in short, to find a way or make it. France found a way to aid our struggling fathers in their midnight gloom, with scarce one star of hope to rift the overhanging cloud. Besides, we cannot ignore the fact that there are moral duties resting upon nations, which ofttimes rise superior to fine-spun technicalities and the cold logic of law, and that these moral obligations rest more imperatively upon some nations than upon others. Indifference and inactivity may discourage, may even delay, the coming triumph of the inevitable, but they are powerless to prevent it.

There is presented to us a question which we cannot well escape—a cry coming across the waters for sympathy and for aid to which we cannot much longer close our ears or hearts. This appeal comes direct to us as the chosen people, who have passed through the Red Sea of oppression and the wilderness of despair on and out into the goodly land of freedom, which we have occupied and in which we have waxed great and strong through the priceless heritage of independence won. There are appeals for help at times when it becomes almost a crime not to stretch out the hand with needed aid—when aid and encouragement mean salvation, life, peace and happiness, and their refusal is sorrow, suffering, degradation and death.

We are here as American citizens, loving freedom for itself, to reaffirm our faith in American liberty by expressing a warm sympathy for a people coming up out of the land of Egypt and out of the house of bondage. There may be some today who doubt the propriety of giving voice to this sympathy for fear it may offend or violate some international courtesy. Was Spain restrained by delicate scruples when in the early days of our great civil strife she interposed? The American citizen who could quench the burning sympathy in his heart for the oppressed and down trodden must needs be obliv-ious to the principles for which our fathers fought and on which our government is founded.

Erase from history our own declaration of independence and forget the hand which penned that immortal document, which declares "that when a long train of abuses and usurpations evinces a design to reduce the people under absolute despotism it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government." Forget, too, that Washington lived; that Lafayette crossed the ocean to bring aid and encouragement by word and deed to despairing patriots, and, with Steuben and De Kalb, shared the privations of camp and the dangers of the battlefield. Blot from memory Bunker Hill, the heroic suffering at Valley Forge and the triumph at Yorktown. Nay, forget that brave men at Antietam died, and close your eyes to the graves of sleeping heroes, from the north and from the south, all through the beautiful southland, who fell in the cause of freedom and in maintaining what they believed to be right. Nay, more, fold up yonder symbol of a great free nation and enshroud its stars and stripes.

When Americans may suppress such sympathy, then may we listen for the death knell of freedom, and, fearing to voice the spirit which animates our breasts, brand us cowards all. We, as a government, with high regard for national honor and national dignity, may be reserved, conservative and diplomatic, but as individual citizens we may span the dividing waters with a hopeful, generous sympathy, and bid Godspeed to the Cuban patriot in his sublime hope and his holy ambition. His cause is just, the right shall prevail, and in God's own time Cuba will be free.

HUGO BECKMANN

Is Charged With Murdering His Wife

To Obtain $45—The Woman Was Strangled to Death With a Towel —Beckmann Arrested.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—To obtain $45 the life was strangled out of Mrs. Maggie Beckmann, last night, and her husband, Hugo Beckmann, is under arrest charged with the commission of the crime. The couple lived in flat "L," at 2007 State street.

At 8 o'clock this morning Mrs. Anna Spencer, occupying a flat in the building, found Beckmann in the corridor crying: "Some one has killed my wife!" Opening the door leading into the apartments he occupied Beckmann pointed to his wife lying dead on the bed. Her clothes were torn, as if a struggle had taken place between the dead woman and her murderer. Her neck was bruised, and under the bed lay a towel, wound and twisted showing that it had been used to strangle the unfortunate woman.

Indiana Attorney in Trouble.

ENGLISH, Ind., Nov. 22.—Robert J. Tracewell created a sensation in the Harrison county circuit court yesterday afternoon by accusing District Attorney Albert Founkhouser with wilful intent and action of aiding and abetting criminals in defeating the laws of the state, though he had sworn to defend the laws of the state in such cases. Mr. Tracewell threatened to prosecute Founkhouser for remissness of duty and demanded that Judge Zenor compel him to take his place among the state's attorneys, which the judge did. Tracewell and Founkhouser are associates in law.

IN ETERNITY, WHERE?

"And What Will Ye Do in the End Thereof?"

Evangelist Chapman Pleads With Sinners to Turn to Christ Before Death Closes in on Them.

"And what will ye do in the end thereof?"

The above were the words of Jeremiah, the prophet, uttered more than 2,400 years ago.

They were the words used by Dr. Chapman, the evangelist, as the text of his discourse at the Princess rink last night.

It was a wonderfully impressive and convincing sermon and held the audience present spell-bound listeners during the half hour that he occupied in its delivery.

It was a sermon that was intended to arrest the attention of the unconverted and turn their minds to thoughts of their condition after the grave had closed their earthly career.

"Where will you spend eternity?" was the question that Dr. Chapman asked again and again and pleaded with his hearers to decide before death came to shut the doors of Heaven against them forever and forever.

Now was the accepted time, he urged, to determine this great question of the soul's eternal salvation. Tomorrow may be too late. As long as the lamp of life holds out the vilest sinner may return and live through eternity with God, but when death comes with this question undecided the doom of the unrepentant is settled and he is lost forever.

The delivery of the sermon was preceded by a song service conducted by Professor Lowe, and during which the chorus choir sung a number of gospel hymns and Mr. E. F. Yarnelle and daughter, Miss Edith Yarnelle, sang a duet. The opening prayer, an earnest one and interceding for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the conversion of sinners, was offered by Rev. J. L. Leeper, the pastor of the Westminster church.

Dr. Chapman then made the announcements for the services today and the Sunday evening service at the rink for men only, and spoke briefly about his satisfaction and pleasure at seeing so many present at the meetings. Coming through the storm as they did, it was the very best indication, he said, of the interest that the people of Fort Wayne are taking in the salvation of the souls of those about them. He had, he said, received a number of requests since he had been in the city to preach on doctrinal questions. He would be forced to decline doing so because he came here to preach simply the gospel of Jesus Christ and to win souls for Him. He would preach Christ first, last and all the time without entering into the doctrinal differences between the churches.

Professor and Mrs. Lowe then sang a duet, after which Dr. Chapman read the text of his sermon, given above, and began the delivery of his discourse.

At the time Jeremiah was called to prophesy, he said the people of Jerusalem and Israel were in a desperate state. They were filled with sin, and the prophet did everything in his power to stem the tide of wickedness and turn the people back to God. When all else failed he pictured the final results of such a course of action and turned on them with the words of the text, "What will ye do in the end thereof?"

In order that you may understand the theme which I desire to urge upon you, let me transpose the words of Jeremiah and make them read, "Where will you spend eternity?" or to make them shorter let me compress them into two words, "Eternity, where?"

Over in Delaware, Ohio, where I preached upon this subject, a skeptic wrote that he had heard me preach on this theme and those two words kept ringing in his ears until he could not rest, and he asked me to help him to an answer. A merchant in Erie, Pa., said he could get away from everything in the sermon but the words, "eternity, where?"

Did you ever think what these words mean? Ten thousand years from now and we will be somewhere. Where? When we consider that ten thousand times ten thousand years may pass and eternity will have but just begun the thought is terrible—appalling. Where will you spend it? It all depends upon yourself. When I think the word means an eternity away from God and our nearest and best friends, I think it is the saddest in the human language; but when I think it means an eternity with Jesus Christ and those we love it becomes the sweetest ever lisped and I repeat over and over again, with a full heart, "Eternity, eternity, thy end shall never be."

There are those in this house tonight who have been seeking something to satisfy the longings of their souls, some thing to satisfy their hunger, but if they go on in their sins and do not turn to the Lord they will go on with this aching void in their hearts, trying to seek satisfaction from earthly things and never finding it. There is only one name under heaven that can satisfy this hunger, and that is the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Believe in Him and you will be satisfied now and satisfied in eternity, but refuse to accept Him as your Savior and you will go through eternity with remorse and unhappiness in your heart, for I believe that the damnation of the wicked is without end.

Dr. Chapman then addressed the [illegible] he said, to put three questions to you Is it because men are indifferent to eternity that they pay no heed to the question, where will you spend eternity? I do not think so. Are men indifferent to their condition in eternity because they are satisfied with the old life? I do not believe it. Is it from recklessness? One would almost think so when we see men remaining away from Christ with only one heart beat between this life and eternity. There is not a sinner in Fort Wayne who is satisfied with his condition. No man is satisfied away from God. The seat of the difficulty is found in a single word spelled with three letters. Your trouble is SIN. When a man gives that up, God is willing to save him. I believe it is a grand thing to be a Christian for this world even if there was no hereafter.

Dr. Chapman closed with a most eloquent plea to the unconverted. Now at the end of this meeting, he said, I give you these two words: Eternity, where? Eternity, where? Fourteen years ago I was ordained a minister, and three years ago I entered this field of work, and not in all that time have I so realized the actual presence of Christ as I feel that he is now in the city of Fort Wayne. Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. He is here, I feel His presence, and it seems as if I can almost see Him. 'Twill be an awful thing, friends, to go into eternity and know that while He was passing by He had been rejected. Oh, eternity, where? Eternity, where?"

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Dr. Chapman will preach tonight at the Princess rink.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Lowe will conduct a service in Princess rink. "The Life of Christ" will be told in song and by means of stereopticon views.

At 7 o'clock Sunday morning, at Wayne street M. E. church, a service for the young people's societies of the city will be held. This will last just one hour. At 3:45 p. m. Sunday, a young people's service will be held at Princess rink, to which all are invited. Sunday evening the meeting at the rink will be for men. Some of the churches will be open for women's meetings.

DEBS RELEASED.

Marched Around the Public Square Behind a Band.

"Conscientiously Paid the Penalty"—Will Speak at Chicago Tonight on "Personal Liberty."

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Nearly 1,000 representatives of the various labor organizations of Chicago left on a special train of ten coaches over the Northwestern road for Woodstock, Ill., shortly after noon today, to give a reception to Eugene V. Debs, when he stepped forth a free man from the jail at that place this afternoon. Debs sentence really ended at midnight, but he preferred remaining in jail in order that the program arranged by himself and friends could be carried out.

"I have been sustained," he said last night, "by conscientiously paying the penalty for doing what I conceived to be my duty."

After a reception at the jail they and Debs marched around the public square to the music of a band and drum corps. Coffee and sandwiches were served before the return to Chicago.

Arrangements have been made for a meeting at Battery D tonight, at which Debs will speak on "Personal Liberty." Delegations from Cleveland, Cincinnati and other cities are looked for.

IN A DEAD-LOCK

Is the Base Ball League Over the Columbus Franchise.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22—The Western Base Ball league is in a dead-lock over the Columbus franchise. There are four applicants for it, with Tom Loftus in the lead. Last night's session continued until 1 o'clock this morning.

At noon the session was resumed with little prospect of a termination today. J. W. Gunnells refused the Toledo franchise yesterday because he could not get a five year agreement, and it is likely that Omaha may yet get into the league, as there are no other applicants for the Toledo franchise.

Shot His Father.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 22—Brigham J. Jefferies, a farmer living near Providence, died yesterday from a gun shot wound inflicted by his eighteen-year-old son, Joseph. The young man claims that the shooting was accidental and in this statement he is corroborated by an elder brother. Their sister, however, claims that the shot was fired with murderous intent. She declares that Joseph and her father quarrelled in the dining room, and that Joseph there seized a shotgun, which was taken from him by his brother. Joseph then ran out and got another gun, she says, and fired the fatal shot. The coroner's jury did not charge Joseph with murder.

WERE SELLING BEER.

Supt. Liggett Visits the Bob-o'-Link Club Dance.

Police Call at Henze's Saloon—Mrs. Moyer in Van Wert—Big Gang of Tramps.

Last night the Bob 'O Link club gave a dance at the Saengerbund hall. It was attended by a very large crowd. About 9 o'clock Police Superintendent Liggett stopped in to see how everything was going and was surprised to several white-aproned men behind a temporary bar serving beer to the crowd. Several kegs were on tap and the beer was being sold very rapidly. The superintendent immediately ordered the business stopped, which was done. To a SENTINEL reporter he said this morning that it was a flagrant violation of the law, and that he was very much surprised when he saw it.

A HORDE OF TRAMPS.

The police station was filled last night by the crowd of tramps who were driven to shelter by the cold and stormy weather. The "bum" room contained about twenty-five of them. This morning they were all obliged to go to work and clean up the station before they were liberated. In the crowd last night was one colored man.

ANOTHER CASE.

A new case of diphtheria was reported to the police this morning. It is at No. 169 Gay street.

IN VAN WERT.

David Moyer, the West Main street man who called at the police station a few days ago and inquired about his wife, who had left home on Monday and failed to return, called again and received some information last evening. The officers found that Mrs. Moyer had left her baby buggy at a house on Grand street and then took her child and went to Van Wert, Ohio. When Moyer called at the police station last night he was told of what the officers had learned. He said he was unable to account for his wife going to Van Wert, because she had no relatives there. He apparently suspected that there was another man in the case, because he remarked that he would go and see if a certain man was missing from a feed yard near his home and said that if he was, he thought that fact would explain the whole matter. He has not returned since he went to see about the man.

AT COLUMBIA CITY.

Captain Borgman, Sergeants Daseler and Jewell and Officers Strodel and Coling were in Columbia City today testifying before the grand jury in the Singer murder case at Dunfee.

THE POLICE CALLED.

Last evening the police called at the saloon of William Henze, on Clinton street, and chased out three women who were in the place drinking. The officers propose to allow no wine rooms to operate in the city. Henze became very wrathy over the visit of the police but the women were obliged to leave.

SENATOR HILL MAY MARRY.

Rumor Again Revived by His Leasing a House in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Is Senator Hill to marry? At all events he is going to keep house. He has leased a large house on I street, in the most fashionable quarter of Washington, and expects to take possession soon after the meeting of congress. He is either going to marry or is going to avoid the discomforts of hotel life in the capital. It is hard enough for married people to live at the hotels in Washington, but for bachelors hotel life is a burden, indeed. Senator Hill is not in Washington, though the rumor that he is about to marry has percolated through the political atmosphere pretty thoroughly. None of his friends is in a position to throw any light on the report, but the fact remains that he has leased a residence built for two.

May Be the Democratic Nominee for Governor.

Burned Fatally.

WINSTON, N. C., Nov. 22.—Thomas Mabe and his two sons were burned fatally last night by a fire which destroyed their brandy distillery, near Danbury, in Stokes county. The fire originated from the singlings and latinge boiling over and catching fire. The burning fluid ran on the two sons, who were asleep on the floor. The house was locked up and the father and sons were unable to get out.

Killed Her Husband.

CENTRE, Ala., Nov. 22—W. H. Walker, a prominent planter, fifty years old, while on a violent spree, went home and threatened to kill his wife and child. The woman snatched up her child and her husband's pistol and fled to her sister's home, half a mile away. As Mrs. Walker entered the door of her sister's home her husband attempted to seize her, when she shot him dead.

TAKING A RISK.

People Who Neglect to Make Improvement Payments.

An Important Matter That Should Not be Overlooked—Other City Hall Items.

Deputy City Comptroller Evans remarked to THE SENTINEL that there are a great many people in the city who are taking great chances of losing their property. Many property owners have taken advantage of the Barrett law, which gives them ten years in which to pay for street, sewer and sidewalk improvements, etc. The payments are made semi-annually, in the spring and fall, and if one payment becomes due and goes delinquent the total amount becomes due and can be collected. The law provides that the property can be sold to make these payments. Mr. Evans says there are a large number of property owners in the city who have allowed their payments to become delinquent and are running the risk of having their property sold away from them. It is an important matter, and people should not neglect making provisions for meeting the payments when they become due.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER

FROM LACK OF INFORMATION.

Doctors Are Too Reserved. A Woman Should Be Dealt With Openly.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Women are often allowed by their physicians to suffer much from lack of information and anxiety.

Many medical men are vain, and it is a struggle for them to acknowledge that they do not understand disease. Women do not investigate; they have faith in their doctor, and often wreck their lives through this unfortunate confidence.

In the treatment of female diseases men work from theory; and it is not to be expected that they can treat as intelligently those complaints from which they have never suffered, as a woman can who has made the organism and diseases of her sex a life study.

Women afflicted with female diseases are wise in communicating promptly with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Their distressed condition is due to womb trouble, and their symptoms tell the story.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one remedy that removes the cause, and restores health, courage, and happiness. The druggists sell more of it than all other female medicines. Why?

The following short letter speaks for itself. Mrs. Parker is a very young wife; only twenty-one years old. She was suffering untold misery when she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. See the result.

Can evidence be stronger than this?

"I deem it my duty to announce the fact to all my fellow-sufferers of all female complaints that your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me of all the pains and suffering I was enduring when I wrote you last May. I followed your advice to the letter, and the result is wonderful."—Mrs. Chas. Parker, Little Falls, Minn. Any druggist has it.

Must Stop Banking.

Secretary Carlisle delivered an important address at the annual banquet of the New York chamber of commerce on Tuesday evening last, in which he declared with emphasis that there could be no safe financial policy for this government until the legal tender greenbacks are retired, and the government entirely separated from the banking business. One of the first dutjes of the next congress will be to provide for a stable currency, and there can be no such thing in this country until the government is entirely separated from banking duties.

As long as it shall issue legal tender paper redeemable in gold, it must keep a large supply of gold idle in the treasury to maintain the credit of the government and assure the general acceptance of its paper; and with hundreds of millions of paper that can be gathered by speculative combinations any week to drain the treasury of its gold, and repeat the operation indefinitely, it is simply midsummer madness for the government to continue in the banking business.

The responsibility for establishing a sound financial policy must now devolve upon the coming republican congress. If the leaders of the majority party are wise they will legislate first of all for the country, relying on the best service to the nation to be the best service to the party. The government must stop banking for the reason that the gold reserve must always be fluctuating and a constant menace to the credit of the government issue, and the time has come when patriotic men of all parties should unite to inaugurate a currency system to be accepted by the people and command credit for its full face in every part of the civilized world.

Who Will Be Elected?

Organized labor is strongly represented in Fort Wayne, and many of the members of the different societies represented in the American Federation of Labor are readers of The Sentinel. It is for this reason that we call attention today to an article which will be published in The Sentinel tomorrow, and which we feel sure will interest all the members of these organizations. It is one giving an account of the most important business which will come before the convention of the American Federation of Labor which is to meet in the city of New York on the 9th of December next. The convention is sure to be a spirited one. Many questions are coming up, the disposition of which will have much to do with the future of the organization. Possibly nothing more important will need to be considered than the choice of president. Last year at Denver John McBride, who for years had been head of the organized miners, was chosen in place of Samuel Gompers, who was the first president of the federation as at present organized, and had served continuously until that time. There are three prominent candidates for the position of president this year: Mr. McBride, Mr. Gompers and P. J. McGuire, the latter being the president of the Carpenter's union. In the article published in The Sentinel tomorrow we will print the pictures of these distinguished labor leaders and have something to say about the prospects of success in the convention of each of the candidates, and also speak about some of the most important questions which will come up for discussion at the meeting. The article will be one which will interest every member of organized labor.

The Woes of the Sultan.

It is understood in well-informed circles, as the cable correspondents gravely say, that the demonstration of the powers has "aroused" the sultan and that he is going to see whether he can not do something. The sultan would certainly be very lethargic, even for a Turk, if he were not aroused by all the prodding that has been given him lately, but his activity is not likely to be overwhelming.

The massacre of Christians in his dominions does not worry him. He rather likes that, for Christians never did make good subjects to the Turk, and it is due as much to outside pressure as to inner change that the original Moslem policy has been at least nominally modified. But this pressure is becoming uncomfortable. From the moment that Islam ceased to advance, it necessarily began to decline, and now the Ottoman empire exists only by tolerance. The united powers of Christian Europe are responsible for it. They have kept the sultan in Constantinople with no other purpose than to keep each other out.

They have kept him there on the supposition that he could govern the region assigned to him, but with each generation his incompetence grows more conspicuous. His dominions have been reduced, and his misgovernment of what is left only grows worse. It has come to a pass now when it seems likely that the common opinion of the civilized world will compel the virtual deposition of the sultan and the administration of his empire under some sort of international agreement. Here is where the mutual distrust and jealousies of the powers come in again to hinder such agreement. It is easy to say that the sultan must go, but who is to take his place?

Contest for Positions.

The canvass for the principal offices at the disposal of the house of representatives, which opened in a slow and quiet fashion this week at Washington, is becoming more animated as the time approaches for the republican caucus, which is announced for Saturday of next week. The elective offices of the house are those of clerk with a salary of $5,000; sergeant at arms, $4,500; doorkeeper, $3,500; postmaster, $2,500; chaplain, $900.

There are from two to seven candidates for each of these places, the highest number being in the race for chaplain. A majority of the candidates for the principal places have opened headquarters in the Ebbitt house and Willard's hotel, and their respective rooms are constantly thronged, notwithstanding comparatively few of the members of the house have arrived, the visitors being composed largely of those who hope to secure appointive positions under the elective officers.

There are only two candidates for the house clerkship. They are ex Congressman Thomas J. Henderson, of Illinois, and ex-Congressman Alex McDowell, of Pennsylvania. Both failed of renomination last year. Mr. McDowell began his canvass a year ago and as soon as it became apparent that the republicans would have the house. It is claimed that he has the solid support of the New York and Pennsylvania delegations. This claim is made the basis of opposition on the part of Mr. Henderson's adherents, as is also the fact that the speakership is conceded to Mr. Reed, who also comes from an eastern state. "We are not," said Congressman Cannon, who is a strong supporter of General Harrison, "putting our claims on sectional grounds, but we cannot overlook the fact that there are 145 republican members west of the Ohio line to ninety east of it. The speakership who all concede to Mr. Reed, of Maine, because of availability and fitness, carries with it nine-tenths of the official honors of the house. It would seem with such a large majority of the republican membership the west should be conceded the clerkship." McDowell's friends claim, however, that he will secure a large vote both in the west and the south. They assert that they will secure the entire delegation from Missouri, and there are negotiations in progress which they say may give them other solid state delegations from that geographical section.

Capt. T. H. McKee, of Indiana, secretary of the republican congressional campaign committee, and Mr. B. Russell, of Missouri, are so far the only announced candidates for the office of sergeant-at-arms. Each has his state delegation behind him and Mr. Russell is understood to be working in conjunction with the McDowell forces. Mr. McKee has, however, the advantage of a more extended and political acquaintance. There has been talk among members of the Minnesota delegation of again bringing out Mr. Reed, of that state, who was a defeated candidate for this office in the Fifty-first congress, for sergeant-at-arms. A Mr. Hartshorn, of Iowa, has also been mentioned in this connection.

The principal candidates for doorkeeper are Mr. Glenn, of New York, and W. L. Tipton, of Tennessee. Glenn has been identified with New York state politics for some years, and Tipton is the editor of a newspaper at Cleveland, Tenn. Henry Sherwood, so far, is the only pronounced candidate for the house postmastership. He hails from Michigan, and was house postmaster during the Forty-third and Forty-seventh congresses and also postmaster in the city of Washington for four years under President Harrison's appointment. It is considered probable that Ohio may bring out a candidate for either this office or that of doorkeeper.

Of the several candidates for chaplain six are Washington preachers. They are Revs. Ramsdell and Easton, Presbyterians; Parsons and Gottwald, Lutherans; Brown, Methodist, and Smith, Baptist. The one outsider in the list is Rev. Mr. Fisher, of Kansas. The patronage of the house consists outside of clerks to committees and clerks of members, of 196 places, the average salaries paid being $1,125. All the places except those named are filled by appointment.

Impure Food.

Enthusiasts prophesy that the day will come when all foods now grown will be produced mechanically and chemically, so there will be no painful grubbing in the earth and digging potatoes and hoeing corn, and thus we shall begin to enjoy the millennium. So far as many articles are concerned, the process of imitating nature's processes by art goes on already, and there is little of the millennium about it, either.

The food commissioner of Ohio found a year ago that out of 1,300 articles put on sale to be eaten and examined by the state chemists, no less than 800 were grossly adulterated. Certain products were manufactured out and out. So called fruit jellies wholesaled to retail grocers at 2 cents a pound are some of these. The tasteless and profitless things are manufactured from glucose and gelatin, acids which are supposed to give them the desired fruit flavor being added without a spoonful of real fruit juice having been within a mile of them.

Really honest fruit jellies cannot be made for much, if any less, than 10 cents the pound, so the customer can judge how much of the genuine article there is in average grocery jelly. The men who make the adulterated goods are the pillars of community, too, very often, and really think of themselves as very good fellows, even when they are candy makers and import tons of white clay annually to mix with the sweets they prepare for children's stomachs.

Commercial olive oil is cottonseed oil and lard. "Cider" vinegar is made of distilled wood shavings. Cider itself is produced through some vile chemical decoction acting on a few dried apples. In many cases the fraudulent substance acts as an irritant; sometimes as a positive poison to the stomach. Evidently this is not the kind of manufactured delicacies the enthusiast had in mind when he predicted the millennium. It is time people began to enter vigorous protests against the wholesale poisoning and starving to which they are being subjected more and more. Law, backed by an enlightened public opinion, can stop the knavish business.

Monroe Doctrine a British Idea.

The New York Sun reminds the American people that the Monroe doctrine as a matter of fact originated nowhere else than in England. When Spain tried through the aid of the so called holy alliance to reconquer her South American provinces, Mr. Canning, British minister, made the proposition that England and the United States should join hands and prevent it. The idea was received with much satisfaction in America. Thomas Jefferson understood Canning as proposing nothing less than that Great Britain should help the United States to keep off the American continent all European powers. Both Canning and Jefferson thought this alliance would prevent war in Europe and America. Now, in trying to grab some 50,000 square miles of territory from the American republic of Venezuela, England finds it convenient to go back on her own doctrine.

The Sun says:

If those English journals of today that wonder why the United States should pretend to interfere in the dealings of Europe with South America would take the trouble to look up the diplomatic history of their own country, at least their ignorance would be less dense. It is true that England's interests 70 years ago were special, and that when some of her statesmen then welcomed the Monroe doctrine their eyes were fixed upon France and Spain. But obviously it cannot alter the essential principle of the doctrine that it was made broad enough to include her with other European powers. She practically invited its promulgation, and it still remains, as it was then, a doctrine she is bound to respect.

There would be now a good chance for Uncle Sam to secure a lot of fine young American men for his new cruisers if he did not permit his officers who graduated at Annapolis to lord it like petty tyrants over fellows who are in some instances better than they themselves are. If Uncle Sam will see that this petty tyranny is stopped, will see also that capable and high spirited young men may be promoted as they deserve to be, even to the highest places, although they may have never seen the inside of Annapolis, then he will get some of the flower of American youth to enlist on his ships. Otherwise not now or ever.

A HERO AT HEART.

WOULD HAVE GONE TO PRISON FOR ANOTHER.

THE ORPHAN BOY WHO HAD NO ONE TO GRIEVE FOR HIM.

Would Have Saved a Companion by Pleading Guilty—Pathetic Story of Juvenile Crime in Chicago—The Governor to the Rescue.

WHEN Illinois' governor signed the pardon of William Blunck the other day, he furnished a sequel to a story of heroic self-sacrifice on the part of a waif of Chicago's streets that has few parallels outside of fiction. A 16-year-old boy is released from a sentence of forty years' confinement within the gray walls of Joliet, though it is feared that his liberty will not save him from filling a consumptive's grave. But if he dies now it will be in freedom and not as a convict. The boy returned to Chicago last week and was met at the railway station by those who secured his pardon. He was very weak, but hopes of his recovery have not been abandoned.

Governor Altgeld's action was due to the influence of two prominent Chicagoans, one a lawyer and the other a banker, Luther Laflin Mills and Byron L. Smith. Mr. Smith, who is president of the Northern Trust company, was particularly active in the boy's behalf, and it is due to his kindly interest more than that of any other one man that Willie Blunck was taken from a felon's cell. Yet until after the pardon was granted the bank president had not set eye on the waif whom he has so well befriended.

While Mr. Smith resolutely refuses to talk of his protege or what he has done or will do for him, it is known that he was attracted to the boy by hearing how he had offered to take all the blame for a murder for which he and a young companion were on trial. Over two years ago Willie Blunck, then 14 years old, and Tom Lavein, aged 16, engaged in a fight with Albert Achroth, a Pole. Both boys were intoxicated, and Lavein shot and killed the man with an old pistol. Young Lavein had parents and a home and friends, while Blunck was an orphan. When the boys were arrested and brought to trial everything was done to save the Lavein boy, but the evidence went steadily against him. His father and mother were in the deepest distress. One day during the trial Willie Blunck called the young lawyer whom the court had appointed to defend him, and urged that the crime be all laid upon him.

"Tommy's father and mother are taking on over his trouble, but I haven't no father or mother or anybody to care what becomes of me," he said. "Let him go and put it all on me."

The young attorney was much moved by this proposal, though he refused to follow his boyish client's unselfish wish. Both lads were sentenced to forty years in the penitentiary. Lavein's relatives moved for a new trial, but Willie Blunck could not, and ere long he went to work in the rattan and reed department at Joliet. He was a "good" convict, and worked steadily until about two months ago, when he was consigned to the hospital by the penitentiary physician because of consumption. He has been gaining slightly of late, and with changed surroundings may recover.

One of the women who visits the Chicago criminal court and county jail, Miss Jennie McLaughlin, took pity on the friendless orphan and did what she could to cheer him. She had heard how he offered to suffer in the place of his companion, and after he had been taken to Joliet she related the story to a friend. This friend was so impressed with the short recital that he wrote an account of the fact to a morning newspaper. His communication chanced to come to the notice of Banker Smith.

"A boy who will offer to do what this one is credited with cannot be really bad," said Mr. Smith. So he told his cousin, Luther Laflin Mills, what he had read, and together they investigated the case. The managers of the state reformatory were communicated with, and they made personal investigations. Then they signed a petition for pardon to the governor. All these steps took time, but finally everything was done, and Willie Blunck now has a chance, if his health will permit, to take a man's place in life.

His first benefactress, Miss McLaughlin, went to the penitentiary to receive him on his release. Mr. Smith will have him placed in a good home, where he will be well cared for. The future disposition of the orphan depends on whether or not he is able to recover from the malady with which he is affected.

SET FIRE TO THE JAIL.

Incredible Act of Fanaticism Reported from Mexico.

News comes from Texacapa, Mexico, inhabited by indians and mestizos (half breeds), that ten persons were burned there as heretics by order of the auxiliary town judge. He claims he was acting accrding to the will of God, manifested to him in an extraordinary vision, accompanied by certain indications of divine wrath against heretics and people leading immoral lives.

The auxiliary judge said: "I obeyed the divine command and ordered out my alguacyildes (constables), and we took these sinners from their beds and dragged them in the darkness of night, weeping and wailing, to the jail. When they were locked securely in I ordered the alguacyildes to set the building on fire."

Twenty-one arrests were made, although the fanatical mob threatened death to the authorities. The prisoners, securely bound around the arms and chained together, were marched to Mollango, where a judicial investigation will take place. The whole population of Texacapa appears gone mad. All believe the auxiliary judge was commissioned by the Almighty and the saints to destroy evil-doers. They point to the pile of bones on which they profess to see miraculously traced outline forms of the saints who, on advising the judge to burn the heretics, left their images. The community is nothing but an open-air madhouse.

NO ONIONS FOR HER.

An Illinois Schoolm'am Who Objected to Offensive Odors.

The public schools of the little town of Pecatonica, Ill., have been greatly stirred up for several days, and for a time a merry war was threatened. Miss Foster, one of the teachers, requested the pupils not to eat onions, which many of them were in the habit of doing, as the odor was offensive to others who did not indulge in them. The request was considered an infringement on their rights, and many of the pupils took to eating them, some even bringing raw onions to school and distributing them around among the scholars, and they were thrown in the wood box and placed in the desks. The rod of chastisement was applied, and the parents of many of the pupils have severely censured the teacher for her demand. The teacher says she punished the pupils only for insubordination, and not for eating onions. The matter has stirred up much feeling.

A Steamboat Attacked by a Shark.

The Blonde, a small steamer, was caught in a violent storm in Queen Charlotte sound on her last trip north. While the waves were sweeping over the boat and the captain feared that they might never reach port alive, a shark, over thirty feet long, made its appearance directly in front of them and appeared to be preparing to charge the steamer.

Capt. Beck could not resist a shot from his rifle at the huge fish. His aim was true and a rifle ball was imbedded in the head of the man-eater The shark, furiously lashing the water, retreated several yards and, turning on its back, charged directly at the little steamer. The shock was so severe when the boat and fish met that those on board said it felt as if they had struck a rock. The boat quivered from stem to stern and swayed even more fiercely than in the storm. The shark, however, had had enough and, retreating, sank out of sight.—San Francisco Chronicle.

MRS. "BARNEY" BARNATO.

Wife of the World's Richest Man and Her Interesting Husband.

Much as current interest now centers in Barney Barnato, the multi-millionaire magnate of the South African mining region, a more tender sentiment will be entertained toward his beautiful wife and their two interesting children, Primrose and Jack.

Mrs. Barnato was born in Africa, and she is both beautiful and charming. A devoted wife and mother, she nevertheless finds time for such social obligations as her position in life demands, and to those who come within her favor, she is a most lovable woman. The fabulous wealth of her husband puts within her reach every luxury that even the feminine mind can conceive, and she wears the distinction which such wealth confers with an unostentatious grace that makes her a queen among women. It is not surprising, therefore, that her husband escapes from the exciting turmoil of money-making whenever the opportunity presents itself, or that he is happiest and appears at his best when, having cast aside the cares of business, he enters upon the pleasant enjoyment of home life which he shares with his wife and children. These favored parents are as blessed in their family surroundings as they are opulent in material interests. They have two lovely children, a three-year-old daughter named "Leah Primrose," and a baby boy aged two years, christened "Ladas Rosebery," but always called "Jack." Primrose is a pretty child, and a great favorite.

A FLY RUN.

The Clover Leaf and the I., D. & W. Start One.

The Pennsylvania Wants to Freeze Out the Pullman Company,—Findlay's Owners Pay Us a Visit.

At 10 o'clock this morning a special train left the Union station, in Indianapolis, for St. Louis, over the new St. Louis line, via the Indiana, Decatur and Western and Clover Leaf routes. An attempt will be made to lower the running time record between Indianapolis and St. Louis. The train consisted of one baggage car, two Wagner sleepers and General Manager Pierce's private car. On board the train were the line officials, newspaper men and a large number of St. Louis merchants, the latter coming to Indianapolis especially to make the return trip. The distance by the new line is 253 miles. It is expected that the flyer will reach St. Louis at 4 o'clock.

FIVE OF THEM CHOSEN.

Five of the nine members of the board of managers who are to control the new Government Traffic association are: Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Orland Smith; Vanderbilt system, H. J. Hayden; Chesapeake and Ohio and Big Four, Oscar G. Murray; Pennsylvania system, D. S. Gray; Erie, Geo. E. Cochran. The remaining four members are to be announced soon, or when selected.

A YARD CLERK'S WIFE MAKES INQUIRY.

The wife of a yard clerk writes the Indianapolis Journal as follows: "In an article headed 'Railway Men's Pay,' the Journal speaks of the good pay received by railway men. No doubt the trainmen do receive good wages. My husband is yard clerk in one of the freight yards of a large railway running into this city. He goes to his work at 6:30 a. m. every day in the week, and most of the time does not leave it until 7 and sometimes 8 p. m., and receives but $40 per month. Besides keeping his family he has to pay rent out of that sum. Now, yard men work just as hard as trainmen, but their pay is much less. Isn't there great injustice in this?"

TWO RAILWAY MAGNATE'S HERE.

John Jacob Astor, owner of the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western road, and Dr. W. S. Webb, president of the Wagner Palace Car company, and also a Findlay stockholder, were in the city a few minutes yesterday afternoon. They traveled in their special car, "Elsmore," and had just completed a thorough inspection of the line. The road will soon have an eastern outlet and will then become a much more important line than it is at present. The "Elsmore" and its distinguished occupants left for Toledo over the Wabash. The train was in charge of Conductor Driver and hauled by engine 332, with Engineer McMurray at the throttle, running as the second section of No. 46. Mr. Astor and Dr. Webb alighted and walked about the depot platform until the Findlay engine was exchanged for a Wabash engine, when they re-entered their car and shortly afterwards left.

WANTS TO OPERATE ITS OWN SLEEPERS.

The impression prevails in railway circles that the Pennsylvania company is endeavoring to cancel its contract with the Pullman company and, if successful, will operate its own sleeping cars, as it does its dining cars. This belief has been strengthened by the recent movement of the railway company to compel the Pullman people to make a lower rate on upper than lower berths in their sleeping cars. E. A. Ford, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, says they had taken the action because people who paid a certain rate for lower berths would not pay a similar rate for the upper berths, and as a result too many Pullman cars were being hauled without enough passengers in them to pay expenses.

AN OLD ENGINE SCRAPPED.

No. 216, one of the old Boon engines built in the Pittsburg shops in 1873, twenty-two years ago, is being "scrapped" today. The boiler will be stripped of all its fixtures and sent to Crestline, where it will furnish steam for a stationary engine in a water station. The "Boon" engines, although remarkable for their speed and hauling capacity for so light a locomotive, have outlived their usefulness and only two or three remain. They are too light for the passenger or freight service of today and for some years have been hauling stone and gravel trains. There were twenty-two of these engines built in the Fort Wayne shops in 1873.

SNOWBOUND THREE DAYS.

"I well remember an account of a remarkably slow run made over a portion of the Lake Shore road upon strap rails in the early '50's," said M. D. Jones, now chief dispatcher on the Ohio Central lines. "The story was related by the lamented Fred Avery, of blessed memory, who was in the employ of the Michigan Southern division of the Lake Shore for forty years as engineer and conductor.

"A passenger train left Toledo one afternoon in a snow storm and after several hours struggle had made about sixteen miles and were stalled in the vicinity of a log house, where the train crew and the few passengers happily found accommodations for the night by 'spooning' closely. It was unnecessary to protect the train, as it was the only outfit the company possessed at that time.

"At daylight the next morning Fred shouldered a stick of dry basswood, which the kindly farmer donated, and in due time had steamed up, and after breakfast a fresh start was made. Two miles were covered when darkness came upon them and they retreated to the same log house where they had lodged the previous night, and the following night were able to reach Adrian, having covered the distance of thirty-three miles in three days.

"In due time the old strap rail gave way to the iron rail and improvements in locomotives kept pace. The steam gauge was invented, the first one placed upon an engine in the Adrian shops having been such a source of wonderment to the night hostler, a son of the Emerald Isle, that he asked Engineer Avery to go with him and see the blanketiest clock in America on Mike Hart's engine, and remarked that he couldn t see how Mike could tell the time by such a clock as that."

BRIEF MENTION.

J. Saffern has resigned his position in the Pittsburg yards.

Anthony Girard, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

John T. Leach, boilermaker, and John Uhelhour, tinner, have returned to their respective places in the Pittsburg shops.

D. L. Mason, fireman on the Pittsburg road, is off duty with a lame back.

Pittsburg engine 225 left the Pittsburg shops this morning, after being repaired.

Blacksmith Peter Ohnhausen, of the Bass shops, is off duty on account of sickness.

P. E. Albers is one of the absentees at the Pittsburg shops today, he being sick with a cold.

Irvine Henschel, of the Pittsburg roundhouse, is sick. He has been unable to work since Saturday.

After an attack of pleurisy, Machinist Frank Schram resumed his duties in the Pittsburg round house this morning.

Thomas Donahue, engine hostler at the Pittsburg roundhouse, resumed work this morning, after a week's illness.

Joseph D. White resumed work in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning, though still far from being a well man.

Blacksmith Fred Lenz, of the Pittsburg shops, is attending a wedding of a relative today and his place at the forge is vacant.

Sam Eckelberger, of the Pittsburg roundhouse, who had a foot hurt several days ago, was able to resume work this morning.

Switch engine No. 9 went into the Pittsburg shops this morning for repairs. No. 237 will do switch duty in the place of No. 9.

John Franke, jr., of the Pittsburg machine shop, will leave for Mansfield, Ohio, in a few days. He has relatives residing in that city.

Sam T. Jacks and his bull fighters left for the west over the Wabash this morning. They will stop at Lafayette and give an exhibition en route.

Foreman John Kretsinger, of the Pittsburg planing mills, is up and about the house and no doubt will be able to resume work next Monday.

Fireman D. Overholt, of the Pittsburg road, left this morning for Philadelphia, where, so it is believed, he will be married to a charming young lady.

E. B. Taylor, general superintendent of transportation of the Pennsylvania lines, passed through the city in his special car on No. 8 last evening, en route east.

George P. Gordon is slowly recovering from his serious attack and will no doubt be able to resume charge of affairs at the Pittsburg baggage room next week.

Miss Mollie Forbing, of Decatur, Ind., who was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. H. Franke, of No. 366 South Hanna street, several days, returned home yesterday.

S. K. Renfrew, one of the veterans in the Pennsylvania shops, is reported to be a little better at present than he has been for many months. Mr. Renfrew has not been able to work since last winter.

G. Waldsmith, janitor at the Pittsburg planing mills, resumed his duties this morning, after a two weeks' absence on account of quarantine restrictions which were thrown around him.

The Wabash lines earned in the second week of November $244,652, an increase over the corresponding week of 1894 of $12,277.

Mr. Green, who has charge of the electric light station at Portland, Ind., was here yesterday, purchasing some electrical apparatus.

Theodore Lincoln, machinist at the Wabash shops, struck himself above the right eye with a sledge yesterday, inflicting a painful wound.

H. E. Wagner, who was visiting friends in the country, resumed his engine duties on the Pittsburg road this morning. He is a fireman.

Conductors W. B. Kitzelman and Frank Stone are taking advantage of a lull in freight traffic to attend to some private business. Both are Nickel Plate employes.

Thus far this year the Pennsylvania has purchased for its western lines four thousand new cars, and for the lines east of Pittsburg but 1,500. Of the cars purchased 3,500 are coal cars and 2,000 box cars.

August Schmetzer, who has had charge of the testing department of the electric works at night, has commenced working in the daytime, the company not being able to get castings fast enough to keep the force going night and day.

The Joe Jefferson company will pass through the city tomorrow morning, en route from Pittsburg to Grand Rapids. They will have a special car, which will come in over the Pennsylvania road and be transferred to the Grand Rapids and Indiana road.

The most important shipments from the electric works today were an 1,800-light incandescent machine to the Wellsboro Electric Light company, of Wellsboro, Pa.; an eighty-light arc machine to Haverhill, Mass., and a 650 light incandescent dynamo to Ladoga, Ind.

Pittsburg switch engine 119 was thrown from the rails in the east yards at 4 o'clock this morning by a broken switch and went crosswise of two or three tracks. The wreck crew was called out and worked until 8:30 o'clock to get the engine back on the rails. Engineer Charles Sweeney and Fireman Frank Winget were the crew on No. 119

George W. Soliday, of the Foster Furniture store, and a resident of the Eighth ward, was at the head of the movement which culminated in the mass meeting at Vogely's hall last evening. If the citizens of the east end succeed in getting the much needed bridge across the Maumee river, they will owe Mr. Soliday a vote of thanks for the part he has taken in the matter.

U. S. Meeks, William Swank and Harry Beers, of the electric works, were initiated into Wayne Tent, No. 54, K. O. T. M., last evening and have not altogether recovered composure as yet. By the appearance of the boys this morning, we judge the goat had been feeding upon dynamite for a week or two and when they tackled him he exploded. Wayne Tent now has 155 members.

A. Parker, a well known farmer residing six miles from the city, in St. Joseph township, and some companions arrived home from Wisconsin on No. 8 last evening, bringing the carcasses of five deer, which they had killed. Mr. Parker met with a painful accident while hunting. He slipped while walking on a log and fell, striking the log in such a manner as to fracture three of his ribs.

Immigrant business over the Pennsylvania lines is now the heaviest for some years, but it don't pass over the Fort Wayne branch. For some inexplicable reason the company sends this business over the Panhandle, though its natural route is the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago.

One of the happiest conductors on the Nickel Plate is George McCormack, whose wife recently presented him with a daughter. The new arrival swells the number of children in that family to six, and all are boys but one.

The amount of cash the Union Pacific now has on hand begins to trouble the receivers, and they are asking the courts to act more promptly in ordering disbursements, the cash on hand now having reached $10,000,000 and daily increasing.

It is stated that Joseph Ramsey is to assume the duties of general manager of the Wabash on December 1, instead of January 1, as had been proposed Mr. Hays goes to the Grand Trunk January 1, and wants a short rest, and the successor to Mr. Ramsey is already on the field to manage affairs of the St. Louis Terminal company.

The Monon shops at Lafayette are practically completed and have cost as a plant $400,000, of which sum the city of Lafayette contributed $100,000. The works are not yet in full operation, but already have three hundred or more men at work. The machinery is all of the most modern and approved type and not only can repair work be done but an engine built entire.

Samuel Goss was buried in Zanesville on Tuesday. He was one of the oldest passenger conductors on the Cincinnati and Muskingum Valley road. He began his career as train boy and had reached the position of passenger conductor in 1852, which position he held until 1891, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis, which, in time, was followed by others, resulting in death.

It is very fortunate for the railroad companies that the present snow storm did not come last week, when there was so much freight in transit. It would have caused the worst kind of a blockade. Last week Nickel Plate freight engines hauled trains of thirty to thirty-five loaded cars. Last night a conductor who had only twenty-two cars found them too heavy for the engine and had to leave two of them at Argos. The snow at that point was ten inches deep.

"Winding the Chickens Up."

There is a pretty little girl of 5 years in northwest Baltimore who has been tenderly raised. Her mother has guarded her against witnessing acts of violence or cruelty and she is in ignorance of the methods employed in killing fowls for the table.

Several days ago, unknown to the careful parent, the little girl strayed into the rear yard of her home, where a servant was killing a number of chickens for dinner by wringing their necks. The child watched the proceedings with great interest for several minutes, and then in a glow of excitement ran to her mother.

"Mamma!" she cried, "just come and see the fun. Mary is winding the chickens up."—Baltimore Sun.

FIREMAN INJURED.

Falls From His Engine Tender and Loses a Leg.

The Name of the Unfortunate is Lloyd Carnahan and His Home is at Dunkirk, Ohio.

At 11 o'clock this morning Superintendent C. D. Law received a message from Monroeville, asking him to send a special train and Dr. Stemen down to that point as soon as possible. The superintendent immediately issued the necessary orders and in less than a half hour an engine and coach, manned by Conductor James C. Craig and Engineer Theodore Gould, and carrying Dr. George C. Stemen, were speeding east at the rate of a mile a minute. Arriving at Monroeville, the doctor found Lloyd Carnahan with one leg broken and the flesh of the other stripped from the bone from knee to ankle. The injured man was placed upon the car and brought to Broadway, this city, where the patrol wagon was in waiting to convey him to St. Joseph's hospital. There Drs. C. B. and George C. Stemen made a more careful examination of his injuries and decided that the lacerated leg would have to be amputated and a telephone message from the hospital at 3 o'clock stated that the surgeons were preparing for the operation.

Lloyd Carnahan is a fireman on the Pittsburg road. This morning he was coming in on the first section of freight train No. 73, which stopped at the water plug at Monroeville. Carnahan had just lowered the spout and turned the water into the tank when there was a crash in the rear and the engine moved rapidly forward a few feet. The second section of 73 had collided with the first, and it was this that had caused the engine to move. Carnahan was thrown down and rolled over the coal and top of the tank by the water spout and then dropped to the ground in a dazed condition. At first it was thought that he had been killed, but he soon revived, and was able to talk to his companions concerning the accident. Mr. Carnahan commenced working for the company about four weeks ago. He is a man of perhaps twenty-three years and his parents reside in Dunkirk, Ohio. A despatch informing them of the accident to their son was forwarded this afternoon and they are expected here on No. 9 this evening.

Joseph Kehler Came Very Near Bleeding to Death.

Theodore Brase Badly Hurt by a Fall —Runaway on Hanna Street —Other Accidents.

Joseph Kehler, a carpenter at the feeble minded institute, cut his wrist very badly with a chisel this morning. An artery was severed and the man came near bleeding to death. Dr. McOscar was called and sewed up the wound, thus stopping the profuse bleeding.

A BAD FALL.

Theodore Brase, of No. 202 Fairfield avenue, accidentally fell last night and was seriously hurt. His head struck the pavement and the result was a concussion of the brain. Dr Ruhl attends him and considers his case a serious one.

A RUNAWAY.

Jack Spanberg, driver of a delivery wagon for the Indiana Furniture company, hitched his horse to a post in front of a house on South Hanna street, yesterday afternoon, while he was delivering some goods in the house. A boy wearing a cape overcoat came along and frightened the horse which broke loose and ran away. Spanberg seized the horse's bridle and was dragged some distance but escaped without injury. New furniture was scattered all along the street and much of it broken. The horse was injured by a piece of broken shaft and the wagon was badly damaged.

The prompt and timely work of a motorman on a Lakeside street car last evening saved a drunken man from being killed. The man tried to cross the track in front of the car near the Columbia street bridge and fell down. He was lying directly across the tracks when the motorman spied him and stopped the car in time to save his life.

EMINENT TESTIMONY.

Regarding the New Discovery for Curing Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

Dr. Hartzman, who has made many tests of the new dyspepsia cure, is very enthusiastic in his praise of this excellent preparation. It is not a secret patent medicine, but is composed of pure pepsin, bismuth, fruit salts and vegetable essences, made into pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges and sold by druggists at 50 Cents per package, under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dr. Hartzman states that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure dyspepsia and weak stomachs, because they possess the peculiar power of digesting whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach. They do not act on the bowels like cathartics, but act entirely on the food, digesting it thoroughly and quickly, giving the stomach a chance to rest and recover its natural strength, which it invariably will do after a course of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. If your druggist hasn't them in stock ask him to order a small quantity from his wholesaler.

ARRESTED AS A VAG.

Sleeps in Barns and Leads a Vag's Life.

Justice of the Peace Crippen is Acquitted—Decision in the Supreme Court.

Joseph DeMoney, of Lake township, has filed an affidavit with Justice of the Peace Harry F. France against James Davidson for vagrancy. Davidson is a brother of Thomas Davidson, who is now serving a term in the penitentiary for the murder of his uncle. He has been an idler and a vagrant in Lake township for some time past. He sleeps around in the barns and other out-buildings and lives off of what he can beg from the farmers. He is supposed to be insane. Justice France deputized the sheriff to act as special constable and sent him out to Lake township to arrest Davidson. He will be tried for vagrancy and then a commission of lunacy will hold an examination in regard to his mental condition. Davidson was formerly an inmate of the county infirmary, but would not remain there.

Justice of the Peace Alvin Crippen, of New Haven, who was tried before Justice Bohen on a charge of having rented a house to one Sarah Jackson, which was to be used for immoral purposes, was acquitted. The evidence showed that Mr. Crippen knew nothing about the character of the woman at the time of renting the place. Last week he had his first information as to the reputation of his tenant, and was about to eject her at once.

In the supreme court of the state yesterday the case of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railway company vs. Ostman, administratrix, was decided. The court held that railway company is required to provide suitable and safe structures as appurtenances to its road, and if, from a defective construction thereof, which an employe did not know of, and could not by reasonable observation become acquainted with, an injury occurs, the company is liable for damages. The existence and maintenance of a chute in dangerous proximity to a railroad track is a danger or risk not assumed by a locomotive fireman in the performance of his duty in passing along the line. An employe may know of the existence of a structure and have no knowledge that it is dangerous, and is therefore, not chargeable with contributary negligence, or with having assumed the risk of such danger as one of the hazards of his employment.

An affidavit was filed in Justice Hays' court against Otto Ersam for assault and battery on Mina Swartz He was arrested and his bail fixed at $50. In default of bail he was sent to jail until his case could be heard. A surety of peace case is also pending against him. Ersam resides at Cedarville, in this county.

A Petition From South Wayne People.

They Will Ask That a Portion of That Suburb be Disannexed From the City.

The city council, at its next meeting, will receive a petition signed by Anthony Zimmerman and a number of others asking that a certain portion of South Wayne be disannexed from the city.

The tract described in the petition is included in the following boundaries: A line commencing at the intersection of John avenue and Hoagland avenue, thence running west through Nuttman avenue to Beaver avenue, thence north on Beaver avenue to the first alley south of Organ avenue, thence west on said alley to Broadway, and thence west to the St Mary's river. It is that part of the former town of South Wayne lying south of the described line, west of Hoagland avenue and east of the St Mary's river.

Owing to the fact that the land described is sparsely settled and that it is not platted the petitioners think they are not receiving the benefits in proportion to the amount of city taxes they pay.

Hinshaw Murder.

The anonymous letter from Fort Wayne written in the interest of W. E. Hinshaw, and asserting his innocence, has been placed in my hands to be used in his behalf. Before the same can be made available, it will be necessary for me to have some further information touching some of the details of the crime. If the writer will, therefore, give me the name of a paper in which I can publish the questions I want answered and one where he will be sure to see them, he will be doing an innocent man great service and lightening the load on his own conscience. FIERCE FLAMES

Consume the Exchange Building at Chicago.

A Floor Falls, Carrying With It Six Firemen.

Brave Rescue of a Girl by Captain Hermanson—Loss Estimated at $400,000.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—This morning a disastrous fire broke out in the Exchange building at Van Buren and Market streets. Several persons were injured. Among them were: Nellie Turner, 209 North Centre avenue, jumped from a third story window. Internal injuries and will die Removed to hospital. Kittie Landgraff, jumped from the fourth story window. Internally injured and will probably die. Taken to the county hospital.

The fire broke out in the seven story terra cotta building at No 276 to 278 Market street, extending in an "L" to Van Buren street The first and second floors were occupied by Stein & Beirs, clothing; the third and fourth by Henry Newman, clothing; fifth, Amazon Clothing company; sixth, Fallows & Co., collars and cuffs; seventh, Townsend & Gate, clothing and dry goods, and the National Thread company. The building will probably be entirely destroyed with all its contents.

Each of the firms employed women and as soon as the presence of the fire was made known all were thrown into a state of great excitement Panic reigned everywhere, and before some of the girls could be restrained they had climbed out of the windows and jumped.

One of the first to appear at the third story window was Nellie Turner. She screamed for help and some one on the ground shouted for her to jump. She did not do this, however, and left the window. A moment later she appeared at another, near a fire escape, and climbed upon the sill She clung to the fire escape and commenced to descend. Officer Flaherty was also on the escape between the first and second stories, and when he saw the girl above him he started up to aid her. He was too late. She suddenly lost her balance and fell headlong to the street. Officer Flaherty tried to catch her, but could not reach her She was picked up almost unconscious The injured girl was carried into a drug store and stimulants were administered, but she did not revive. She was removed to the county hospital.

The building cost $150,000, and was insured for $120 000.

Harry Neil, 1029 West Van Buren street, seventeen years old, jumped from the fourth story window and internally injured himself.

The fire seemed to have broken loose on several floors in the big building at the same instant, so rapidly did it spread.

The fire started on the fourth floor, it is thought, in rooms occupied by Stein & Biers. Thirty girls were employed there and they all made frantic efforts to escape. Among the first to come to their aid was "Joe," the janitor of the building. He assured the girls that if they would remain quiet and composed they would all get out safely. He led as many of them as he could induce to accompany him to the main stairway and they reached the street without injury. Those who remained behind, however, fared worse. The additional injured are: Aggie McLain, fourteen years old; Hattie Brennan, Edna Rittert, Mary Pinto, Olga Kellar; the missing John Gruenheimer.

The escape of Olga Kellar, of 575 Waubansia avenue, is regarded as marvelous by those who saw her when she appeared at a fourth story window. She was employed by Stein & Biers, and when the room in which she was working began to fill with smoke, she ran to one of the windows overlooking Van Buren street. She threw up the sash and climbed out on the ledge, clinging with one hand to the narrow strip of wood on the outside of the sash. She saw a few feet below her the ladder on which two firemen stood, and she prepared to jump.

"Wait, don't jump," shouted Captain Hermanson, who had almost reached the window. Great volumes of smoke poured out of the window where the girl stood, and at times her form was entirely obscured. To the hundreds of persons who were watching from the street, the seconds seemed like hours. Cheer after cheer went up for Captain Hermanson as he climbed up He had almost reached the woman when he suddenly stopped. No one on the street knew the cause. He had heard the girl scream, and as he looked up he saw her reel and release her hold on the window siding. She had been overcome by the smoke and had fallen. Captain Hermanson braced himself, and as the unconscious form dropped, he seized it with his right arm. The effort nearly cost him his own life, for he narrowly escaped falling From hundreds of throats cheers were heard as the brave captain descended the ladder with his human burden. He was greeted with unmistakable signs of approval as he carried the girl across the street into a drug store. She was unconscious, but a physician said she would recover.

The loss of building and to the tenants is estimated at from $350 000 to $400,000 The building was insured for $120,000. A few minutes before 1 o'clock the second and third floors fell, carrying with them the first. On the latter six members of engine company No 2 were working They were Capt. Louis Feine, his lieutenant and four linemen. All were buried in the basement where the three floors fell, and it is believed all were killed.

LATER

The following is a list of those known to be dead

Lieut Patrick McDonald.
Martin Sherrick.
John Downe.
John Prendergast.
Their bodies are still in the ruins.

The firemen have located the bodies but cannot get them out.

The fire broke out afresh while the rescuers were at work, and the water had to be turned on.

Kittie Langdraf, who jumped from the building, has since died. Several others may die before morning. Captain Fiene, who was thought to have been burned, escaped injury.

GRAVE FEARS

Are Inspired by the Condition of Affairs in Turkey.

The Powers Want Additional Vessels in the Bosphorus—Reports of Further Massacres.

CONSTANTINOPLE Nov. 22.—The general situation in this country continues to inspire the gravest fears. Telegrams received here from Marash late yesterday, apparently considerably delayed by the Turkish officials, say that the American and other missionaries there are again in the greatest danger.

The Armenians of this city who can be prevailed upon to talk on the subject intimate that a surprise for the Turks is being prepared at Zeitoun and that a battle which will make history and show that the Armenians are entitled to freedom, or at least self-government, will be fought there. As, however, the Armenians are deficient in artillery, it cannot reasonably be expected that they can offer an effective resistance to a regularly organized expedition.

Rumors of fresh troubles at Samsoon, a seaport of Asia Minor, in the Black sea, have also reached here. The population of Samsoon is almost entirely composed of Turks, and the Armenians there are certain to fare badly if an uprising has occurred.

Probably the most serious feature of the situation at present is the one resulting from the demand which the representatives of Great Britian, Russia, Italy and Austria made to the sultan for firmans allowing the passage through the Dardanells to this city of a second dispatch boat, or small gun boat, to be attached to each of their respective embassies. As the powers consider that an increase of the number of foreign warships in the Bosphorus is absolutely necessary for the safety of foreigners in this vicinity, it is possible that they may insist upon their demand, and, in case of a refusal may take steps to send the additional warships without the permission of the sultan.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—A dispatch from Constantinople today says that twenty villages have been burned in the northwestern portion of the district of Alepho and that the inhabitants have been massacred The dispatch adds that the Kurds are gathering on the borders of the Euphrates, preparing to march into Syria for the purpose of massacreing the Christians.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Electric Cars Crash Into Each Other at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov 22.—A narrow escape from another frightful bridge disaster occurred at 2:30 o'clock this morning on the Superior street viaduct. Three street cars were waiting for the draw to be closed. While the motormen were waiting for the draw to swing they deserted their posts of duty and were gossiping among themselves when the rear car started up at a lively rate of speed. When the motorman left his car, the safety cut off had shut off the current and the man did not turn the lever so that the car would not start up. Suddenly the current started again and the street car bounded forward and crashed into the other car The struggle of the panic stricken people inside the cars to escape was fearful.

Mrs. George Schindler, the wife of Assistant Police Prosecuting Attorney Schindler, was badly injured in jumping and was removed to her home in an ambulance. Other women fainted and had to be taken away in carriages or ambulances.

Found This Time, Sure.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 22.—Francis Schlatter, "the healer," who mysteriously disappeared in the night eight days ago, has at last been positively located. He is resting in seclusion on Joseph Wolf's fruit farm, near Boulder, Col., and it is presumed that he is fasting. The man riding a gray horse in the southern part of the state, who pretends to be Schlatter, is an imposter.

Ex-Senator Ingalls Ill.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 22.—Ex-Senator J. J. Ingalls, of Kansas, was to have lectured in the Central Presbyterian church here last night, but a telegram came late in the afternoon from him at Colorado Springs saying that he had been taken ill and should start for home at once. Nothing is known here of the cause of his illness.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Knights of Labor general assembly today selected Rochester, N. Y., as the place for holding its next annual meeting

AID FOR CUBA URGED.

Governor Matthews Speaks at Philadelphia.

In a Meeting of Sympathizers He Declares in Favor of at Least Granting Belligerent Rights.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 22.—The strongest and most outspoken expressions of sympathy for Cuba yet made in this city were heard last night at a meeting held in the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Philadelphia brigade and in aid of their Antietam monument fund. The speakers were Governor Matthews, of Indiana, Gen. Gonzalio De Quesada, secretary of the revolutionary party in the United States, and Capt W. W. Ker, owner of the steamer Laurada. Strong resolutions were adopted, calling upon congress immediately after convening to request President Cleveland to recognize the Cuban republic without delay. General Palma, minister plenipotentiary of the Cuban republic, and a number of prominent local Cubans were present.

When Governor Matthews arose to speak he was greeted with cheers for himself as well as for Cuba. In opening he referred to the significance of a meeting of "citizens of a great free republic, who, with the memories of struggles past and victories won in the sacred name of liberty" gathered with grateful hearts beating in purest sympathy with a people struggling to be free. He then recited the wrongs which the Cuban patriots have suffered for generations, wrongs more cruel crimes more atrocious and oppressive, more wicked than had ever been perpetrated on other people, and he continued:

The wrongs against which we rebelled were not half so grievous, nor the barbarous cruelties nearly so great; and yet the same great principles are involved that aroused to action our fathers in 1776. Revolution has followed revolution, but all to no avail, because from Cuba's peculiar position the armed vessels of Spain have closed her people in from all the world. Defeated often have they been, and put off with promises of reform which never were kept, and with promises of representation in the national cortes, yet their representatives knocking at the door have been laughed to scorn, and the native Cuban has had no voice in the humblest affairs of government. Yet, with all disadvantages, the Cuban patriot has been brave and has fought a good fight From the walls of every city and hamlet, from every forest and plain, the blood of her patriots, and of innocent women and children, cry aloud for sympathy and for justice.

Her sons have inhaled the atmosphere of this liberty-loving country, and their souls have been enkindled with the fires which we have lighted. Cuba presents a long list of martyrs to liberty—brave, self sacrificing and undaunted heroes who have fallen for their country's cause. Our close neighbor, we can almost hear her agonizing cry for help across the narrow channel, and the sounds of battle carrying the salvation of Cuba, or again sealing her defeat for years to come. Is it not time that these struggling freemen should have thrown around them the protection, at least, that may come to recognized belligerents? Would it not be most fitting that a people affording the greatest example of free government which the world has ever known should be the first to accord such rights to a people seeking that which we already have—a people geographically and through every commercial and industrial interest inseparably connected with our own and the other American republics?

There often comes a time in the lives of nations, as well as of men, when it becomes necessary to walk in new, untrodden paths; to brush aside the cobwebs of tradition which but obscure the view, to grasp great living thoughts, and meet the problems of a growing, progressive age—in short, to find a way or make it. France found a way to aid our struggling fathers in their midnight gloom, with scarce one star of hope to rift the overhanging cloud. Besides we cannot ignore the fact that there are moral duties resting upon nations, which oftimes rise superior to fine-spun technicalities and the cold logic of law, and that these moral obligations rest more imperatively upon some nations than upon others Indifference and inactivity may discourage, may even delay, the coming triumph of the inevitable, but they are powerless to prevent it.

There is presented to us a question which we cannot well escape—a cry coming across the waters for sympathy and for aid to which we cannot much longer close our ears or hearts. This appeal comes direct to us as the chosen people, who have passed through the Red Sea of oppression and the wilderness of despair on and out into the goodly land of freedom, which we have occupied and in which we have waxed great and strong through the priceless heritage of independence won. There are appeals for help at times when it becomes almost a crime not to stretch out the hand with needed aid—when aid and encouragement mean salvation, life, peace and happiness, and their refusal is sorrow, suffering, degradation and death.

We are here as American citizens, loving freedom for itself, to reaffirm our faith in American liberty by expressing a warm sympathy for a people coming up out of the land of Egypt and out of the house of bondage. There may be some today who doubt the propriety of giving voice to this sympathy for fear it may offend or violate some international courtesy. Was Spain restrained by delicate scruples when in the early days of our great civil strife she interposed? The American citizen who could quench the burning sympathy in his heart for the oppressed and down trodden must needs be oblivious to the principles for which our fathers fought and on which our government is founded.

Erase from history our own declaration of independence and forget the hand which penned that immortal document, which declares "that when a long train of abuses and usurpations evinces a design to reduce the people under absolute despotism it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government." Forget, too, that Washington lived that Lafayette crossed the ocean to bring aid and encouragement by word and deed to despairing patriots, and, with Steuben and De Kalb, shared the privations of camp and the dangers of the battlefield Blot from memory Bunker Hill, the heroic suffering at Valley Forge and the triumph at Yorktown. Nay, forget that brave men at Antietam died, and close your eyes to the graves of sleeping heroes, from the north and from the south, all through the beautiful southland, who fell in the cause of freedom and in maintaining what they believed to be right. Nay, more, fold up yonder symbol of a great free nation and enshroud its stars and stripes.

When Americans may suppress such sympathy, then may we listen for the death knell of freedom, and, fearing to voice the spirit which animates our breasts, brand us cowards all We, as a government, with high regard for national honor and national dignity, may be reserved, conservative and diplomatic, but as individual citizens we may span the dividing waters with a hopeful, generous sympathy, and bid Godspeed to the Cuban patriot in his sublime hope and his holy ambition. His cause is just, the right shall prevail, and in God's own time Cuba will be free.

HUGO BECKMANN

Is Charged With Murdering His Wife

To Obtain $15—The Woman Was Strangled to Death With a Towel —Beckmann Arrested.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—To obtain $15 the life was strangled out of Mrs. Maggie Beckmann, last night, and her husband, Hugo Beckmann, is under arrest charged with the commission of the crime. The couple lived in flat "L," at 2007 State street.

At 8 o'clock this morning Mrs. Anna Spencer, occupying a flat in the building, found Beckmann in the corridor crying: "Some one has killed my wife!" Opening the door leading into the apartments he occupied Beckmann pointed to his wife lying dead on the bed. Her clothes were torn, as if a struggle had taken place between the dead woman and her murderer. Her neck was bruised, and under the bed lay a towel, wound and twisted showing that it had been used to strangle the unfortunate woman.

Indiana Attorney in Trouble.

ENGLISH, Ind., Nov. 22.—Robert J. Tracewell created a sensation in the Harrison county circuit court yesterday afternoon by accusing District Attorney Albert Founkhouser with wilful intent and action of aiding and abetting criminals in defeating the laws of the state, though he had sworn to defend the laws of the state in such cases. Mr. Tracewell threatened to prosecute Founkhouser for remissness of duty and demanded that Judge Zenor compel him to take his place among the state's attorneys, which the judge did. Tracewell and Founkhouser are associates in law.

IN ETERNITY, WHERE?

"And What Will Ye Do in the End Thereof?"

Evangelist Chapman Pleads With Sinners to Turn to Christ Before Death Closes in on Them.

"And what will ye do in the end thereof?"

The above were the words of Jeremiah, the prophet, uttered more than 2,400 years ago.

They were the words used by Dr Chapman, the evangelist, as the text of his discourse at the Princess rink last night.

It was a wonderfully impressive and convincing sermon and held the audience present spell bound listeners during the half hour that he occupied in its delivery.

It was a sermon that was intended to arrest the attention of the unconverted and turn their minds to thoughts of their condition after the grave had closed their earthly career.

"Where will you spend eternity?" was the question that Dr. Chapman asked again and again and pleaded with his hearers to decide before death came to shut the doors of Heaven against them forever and forever.

Now was the accepted time, he urged, to determine this great question of the soul's eternal salvation. Tomorrow may be too late. As long as the lamp of life holds out the vilest sinner may return and live through eternity with God, but when death comes with this question undecided the doom of the unrepentant is settled and he is lost forever.

The delivery of the sermon was preceded by a song service conducted by Professor Lowe, and during which the chorus choir sung a number of gospel hymns and Mr E. F. Yarnelle and daughter, Miss Edith Yarnelle, sang a duet. The opening prayer, an earnest one and interceding for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the conversion of sinners, was offered by Rev. J L Leeper, the pastor of the Westminster church.

Dr. Chapman then made the announcements for the services today and the Sunday evening service at the rink for men only, and spoke briefly about his satisfaction and pleasure at seeing so many present at the meetings. Coming through the storm as they did, it was the very best indication, he said, of the interest that the people of Fort Wayne are taking in the salvation of the souls of those about them. He had, he said, received a number of requests since he had been in the city to preach on doctrinal questions. He would be forced to decline doing so because he came here to preach simply the gospel of Jesus Christ and to win souls for Him. He would preach Christ first, last and all the time without entering into the doctrinal differences between the churches.

Professor and Mrs Lowe then sang a duet, after which Dr. Chapman read the text of his sermon, given above, and began the delivery of his discourse.

At the time Jeremiah was called to prophesy, he said the people of Jerusalem and Israel were in a desperate state. They were filled with sin, and the prophet did everything in his power to stem the tide of wickedness and turn the people back to God When all else failed he pictured the final results of such a course of action and turned on them with the words of the text, "What will ye do in the end thereof?"

In order that you may understand the theme which I desire to urge upon you, let me transpose the words of Jeremiah and make them read, "Where will you spend eternity?" or to make them shorter let me compress them into two words, "Eternity, where?"

Over in Delaware, Ohio, where I preached upon this subject, a skeptic wrote that he had heard me preach on this theme and those two words kept ringing in his ears until he could not rest, and he asked me to help him to an answer. A merchant in Erie, Pa., said he could get away from everything in the sermon but the words, "eternity, where?"

Did you ever think what these words mean? Ten thousand years from now and we will be somewhere. Where? When we consider that ten thousand times ten thousand years may pass and eternity will have but just begun the thought is terrible—appalling. Where will you spend it? It all depends upon yourself. When I think the word means an eternity away from God and our nearest and best friends, I think it is the saddest in the human language, but when I think it means an eternity with Jesus Christ and those we love it becomes the sweetest ever lisped and I repeat over and over again, with a full heart, "Eternity, eternity, thy end shall never be."

There are those in this house tonight who have been seeking something to satisfy the longings of their souls, something to satisfy their hunger, but if they go on in their sins and do not turn to the Lord they will go on with this aching void in their hearts, trying to seek satisfaction from earthly things and never finding it. There is only one name under heaven that can satisfy this hunger, and that is the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Believe in Him and you will be satisfied now and satisfied in eternity, but refuse to accept Him as your Savior and you will go through eternity with remorse and unhappiness in your heart, for I believe that the damnation of the wicked is without end.

Dr Chapman then addressed the young people in his usual way. "I desire, he said, to put three questions to you Is it because men are indifferent to eternity that they pay no heed to the question, where will you spend eternity? I do not think so. Are men indifferent to their condition in eternity because they are satisfied with the old life? I do not believe it Is it from recklessness? One would almost think so when we see men remaining away from Christ with only one heart beat between this life and eternity. There is not a sinner in Fort Wayne who is satisfied with his condition No man is satisfied away from God. The seat of the difficulty is found in a single word spelled with three letters. Your trouble is SIN. When a man gives that up, God is willing to save him I believe it is a grand thing to be a Christian for this world even if there was no hereafter

Dr. Chapman closed with a most eloquent plea to the unconverted. Now at the end of this meeting, he said, I give you these two words: Eternity, where? Eternity, where? Fourteen years ago I was ordained a minister, and three years ago I entered this field of work, and not in all that time have I so realized the actual presence of Christ as I feel that he is now in the city of Fort Wayne. Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. He is here, I feel His presence, and it seems as if I can almost see Him. 'Twill be an awful thing, friends, to go into eternity and know that while He was passing by He had been rejected Oh, eternity, where? Eternity, where?'

"Conscientiously Paid the Penalty"—Will Speak at Chicago Tonight on "Personal Liberty."

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Nearly 1,000 representatives of the various labor organizations of Chicago left on a special train of ten coaches over the Northwestern road for Woodstock, Ill., shortly after noon today, to give a reception to Eugene V. Debs sentence really ended at midnight, but he preferred remaining in jail in order that the program arranged by himself and friends could be carried out.

"I have been sustained," he said last night, "by conscientiously paying the penalty for doing what I conceived to be my duty"

After a reception at the jail they and Debs marched around the public square to the music of a band and drum corps Coffee and sandwiches were served before the return to Chicago

Arrangements have been made for a meeting at Battery D tonight, at which Debs will speak on "Personal Liberty" Delegations from Cleveland, Cincinnati and other cities are looked for.

Joseph then ran out and got another gun, she says, and fired the fatal shot. The coroner's jury did not charge Joseph with murder

Supt. Liggett Visits the Bob-O'-Link Club Dance.

Police Call at Henze's Saloon—Mrs. Moyer in Van Wert—Big Gang of Tramps.

Last night the Bob O Link club gave a dance at the Saengerbund hall It was attended by a very large crowd. About 9 o'clock Police Superintendent Liggett stopped in to see how everything was going and was surprised to several white-aproned men behind a temporary bar serving beer to the crowd. Several kegs were on tap and the beer was being sold very rapidly. The superintendent immediately ordered the business stopped, which was done To a SENTINEL reporter he said this morning that it was a flagrant violation of the law, and that he was very much surprised when he saw it.

A HORDE OF TRAMPS.

The police station was filled last night by the crowd of tramps who were driven to shelter by the cold and stormy weather. The "bum" room contained about twenty-five of them. This morning they were all obliged to go to work and clean up the station before they were liberated. In the crowd last night was one colored man.

ANOTHER CASE

A new case of diphtheria was reported to the police this morning It is at No 169 Gay street.

IN VAN WERT.

David Moyer, the West Main street man who called at the police station a few days ago and inquired about his wife, who had left home on Monday and failed to return, called again and received some information last evening. The officers found that Mrs. Moyer had left her baby buggy at a house on Grand street and then took her child and went to Van Wert, Ohio. When Moyer called at the police station last night he was told of what the officers had learned. He said he was unable to account for his wife going to Van Wert, because she had no relatives there. He apparently suspected that there was another man in the case, because he remarked that he would go and see if a certain man was missing from a feed yard near his home and said that if he was, he thought that fact would explain the whole matter. He has not returned since he went to see about the man.

AT COLUMBIA CITY.

Captain Borgman, Sergeants Daseler and Jewell and Officers Strodel and Coling were in Columbia City today testifying before the grand jury in the Singer murder case at Dunfee.

SENATOR HILL MAY MARRY.

Rumor Again Revived by His Leasing a House in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Is Senator Hill to marry? At all events he is going to keep house. He has leased a large house on I street, in the most fashionable quarter of Washington, and expects to take possession soon after the meeting of congress. He is either going to marry or is going to avoid the discomforts of hotel life in the capital It is hard enough for married people to live at the hotels in Washington, but for bachelors hotel life is a burden, indeed. Senator Hill is not in Washington, though the rumor that he is about to marry has percolated through the political atmosphere pretty thoroughly. None of his friends is in a position to throw any light on the report, but the fact remains that he has leased a residence built for two.

TAKING A RISK.

People Who Neglect to Make Improvement Payments.

An Important Matter That Should Not be Overlooked—Other City Hall Items.

Deputy City Comptroller Evans remarked to THE SENTINEL that there are a great many people in the city who are taking great chances of losing their property Many property owners have taken advantage of the Barrett law, which gives them ten years in which to pay for street, sewer and sidewalk improvements, etc. The payments are made semi-annually, in the spring and fall, and if one payment becomes due and goes delinquent the total amount becomes due and can be collected. The law provides that the property can be sold to make these payments Mr Evans says there are a large number of property owners in the city who have allowed their payments to become delinquent and are running the risk of having their property sold away from them It is an important matter, and people should not neglect making provisions for meeting the payments when they become due

FIERCE FLAMES

Consume the Exchange Building at Chicago.

A Floor Falls, Carrying With It Six Firemen.

Brave Rescue of a Girl by Captain Hermanson—Loss Estimated at $400,000.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—This morning a disastrous fire broke out in the Exchange building at Van Buren and Market streets. Several persons were injured. Among them were: Nellie Turner, 260 North Centre avenue, jumped from a third story window. Internal injuries and will die. Removed to hospital. Kittie Landgraff, jumped from the fourth story window. Internally injured and will probably die. Taken to the county hospital.

The fire broke out in the seven story terra cotta building at No. 276 to 278 Market street, extending in an "L" to Van Buren street. The first and second floors were occupied by Stein & Beire, clothing; the third and fourth by Henry Newman, clothing; fifth, Arnesse Clothing company; sixth, Follnes & Co., collars and cuffs; seventh, Townsend & Gale, clothing and dry goods, and the National Thread company. The building will probably be entirely destroyed with all its contents.

Each of the firms employed women and as soon as the presence of the fire was made known all were thrown into a state of great excitement. Panic reigned everywhere, and before some of the girls could be restrained they had climbed out of the windows and jumped.

One of the first to appear at the third story window was Nellie Turner. She screamed for help and some one on the ground shouted for her to jump. She did not do this, however, and left the window. A moment later she appeared at another, near a fire escape, and climbed upon the sill. She clung to the fire escape and commenced to descend. Officer Flaherty was also on the escape between the first and second stories, and when he saw the girl above him he started up to aid her. He was too late. She suddenly lost her balance and fell headlong to the street. Officer Flaherty tried to catch her, but could not reach her. She was picked up almost unconscious. The injured girl was carried into a drug store and Hermanson were admitted, but she did not revive. She was removed to the county hospital.

The building cost $150,000, and was insured for $120 000.

Harry Nell, 1029 West Van Buren street, seventeen years old, jumped from the fourth story window and internally injured this morning.

The fire seemed to have broken loose on several floors in the big building at the same instant, so rapidly did it spread.

The fire started on the fourth floor, it is thought, in rooms occupied by Stein & Biers. Thirty girls were employed there and they all made frantic efforts to escape. Among the first to come to their aid was "Joe," the janitor of the building. He secured the girls that if they would remain quiet and composed they would all get out safely. He led as many of them as he could induce to accompany him to the main stairway and they reached the street without injury. Those who remained behind, however, fared worse. The additional injured are: Aggie McInin, fourteen years old; Hattie Brennan, Edna Rikert, Mary Pinto, Olga Keller; the missing: John Gruenheimer.

The escape of Olga Keller, of 575 Washasia avenue, is regarded as marvelous by those who saw her when she appeared at a fourth story window. She was employed by Stein & Biers, and when the room in which she was working began to fill with smoke, she ran to one of the windows overlooking Van Buren street. She threw up the sash and climbed out on the ledge, clinging with one hand to the narrow strip of wood on the outside of the sash. She saw a few feet below her the ladder on which two firemen stood, and she prepared to jump.

"Wait, don't jump," shouted Captain Hermanson, who had almost reached the window. Great volumes of smoke poured out of the window where the girl stood, and at times her form was entirely obscured. To the hundreds of persons who were watching from the street, the seconds seemed like hours. Those also above were up by Captain Hermanson as he climbed up. He had almost reached the woman when he suddenly stopped. No one on the street knew the cause. He had heard the girl scream, and as he looked up he saw her reel and release her hold on the window sliding. She had been overcome by the smoke and had fallen. Captain Hermanson braced himself, and as the unconscious form dropped, he seized it with his right arm. The effort nearly cost him his own life, for he narrowly escaped falling. From hundreds of throats cheers were heard as the brave captain descended the ladder with his human burden. He was greeted with unmistakable signs of approval as he carried the girl across the street into a drug store. She was unconscious, but a physician said she would recover.

The loss of building and to the tenants is estimated at from $350,000 to $400,000. The building was raised a thing in a brief annual meeting $120,000. A few minutes before 1 o'clock the second and third floors fell, carrying with them the first. On the latter six members of engine company No. 2 were working. They were Capt. Louis Feino, his lieutenant and four firemen. All were buried in the basement, where the three floors fell, and it is believed all were killed.

LATER.

The following is a list of those known to be dead:

Albert Patrick McDonald.
Martin Sherrick.
John Downe.
John Prendergast.

Their bodies are still in the ruins.

The firemen have located the bodies but cannot get them out.

The fire broke out afresh while the rescuers were at work, and the water had to be turned on.

Kittie Langdraf, who jumped from the building, has since died. Several others may die before morning. Captain Feino, who was thought to have been burned, escaped injury.

GRAVE FEARS

Are Inspired by the Condition of Affairs in Turkey.

The Powers Want Additional Troops in the Bosphorus—Reports of Further Massacres.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 22.—The general situation in this country continues to inspire the gravest fears. Telegrams received here from Marash late yesterday, apparently considerably delayed by the Turkish officials, say that the Armenian and other missionaries there are again in the greatest danger.

The Armenians of this city who can be prevailed upon to talk on the subject intimate that a surprise for the Turks is being prepared at Zeitoun and that a battle which will make history and show that the Armenians are entitled to freedom, or at least self-government, will be fought there. As, however, the Armenians are deficient in artillery, it cannot reasonably be expected that they can offer an effective resistance to a regularly organized expedition.

Rumors of fresh troubles at Samsoon, a seaport of Asia Minor, in the Black sea, have also reached here. The population of Samsoon is almost entirely composed of Turks, and the Armenians there are certain to fare badly if an uprising has occurred.

Probably the most serious feature of the situation at present is the one resulting from the demand which the representatives of Great Britain, Russia, Italy and Austria made to the sultan for firmness allowing the passage through the Bosphorus to the city of a second dispatch boat, or small gun boat, to be attached to each of their respective embassies. As the powers consider that an increase of the number of foreign warships in the Bosphorus is absolutely necessary for the safety of foreigners in this city, it is possible that they may insist upon their demand, and, in case of a refusal may take steps to send the additional warships without the permission of the sultan.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—A dispatch from Constantinople today says that twenty villages have been burned in the northern Armenian section by the district of Stephe and that the inhabitants have been massacred. The dispatch adds that the Kurds are gathering on the borders of the Euphrates, preparing to march into Syria for the purpose of massacring the Christians.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Electric Cars Crash Into Each Other at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 22.—A narrow escape from another frightful bridge disaster occurred at 2:30 o'clock this morning on the Superior street viaduct. Three street cars were waiting for the draw to be closed. While the motormen were waiting for the draw to swing they deserted their posts of duty and were gossiping among themselves when the rear car started up at a lively rate of speed. The two motormen left the car, the safety cut off had shut off the current and the man did not turn the lever so that the car would not start up. Suddenly the current started again and the street car bounded forward and crashed into the other car. The struggle of the panic-stricken people inside the cars to escape was fearful.

Mrs. George Schindler, the wife of Assistant Police Prosecuting Attorney Schindler, was badly injured in jumping and was removed to her home in an ambulance. Other women fainted and had to be taken away in carriages or ambulances.

Found This Time, Sure.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 22.—Francis Schlatter, "the healer," who mysteriously disappeared in the night eight years ago, has at last been positively located. He is resting in seclusion on Joseph Wolf's fruit farm, near Boulder, Col., and it is presumed that he is fasting. The man riding a gray horse in the southern part of the state, who pretends to be Schlatter, is an impostor.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 22.—Ex-Senator J. J. Ingalls, of Kansas, was to have lectured in the Central Presbyterian church here last night, but a telegram came late in the afternoon from him at Colorado Springs saying that he had been taken ill and should start for home at once. Nothing is known here of the cause of his illness.

AID FOR CUBA URGED.

Governor Matthews Speaks at Philadelphia.

Big Meeting of Sympathizers He Declares in Favor of the Lone Struggling Belligerent Rights.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 22.—The strongest and most outspoken expressions of sympathy for Cuba yet made in this city were heard last night at a meeting held in the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Philadelphia brigade and in aid of their Antietam monument fund. The speakers were Governor Matthews, of Indiana; Gen. Gonzalo De Quesada, secretary of the revolutionary party in the United States, and Capt. W. W. Kerr, owner of the steamer Laurada. Strong resolutions were adopted, calling upon congress immediately after convening to request President Cleveland to recognize the Cuban republic without delay. General Palma, minister plenipotentiary of the Cuban republic, and a number of prominent local Cubans were present.

When Governor Matthews arose to speak he was greeted with cheers for himself as well as for Cuba. In opening he referred to the significance of a meeting of "citizens of a great free republic, who, with the memories of struggles past and victories won in the name of liberty gathered with grateful hearts beating in purest sympathy with a people struggling to be free. He then recited the wrongs which the Cuban patriots have suffered for generations, wrongs more cruel, crimes more atrocious and oppressive, more wicked than had ever been perpetrated on other people, and he continued:

The wrongs against which we rebelled were not half so grievous, nor the barbarous cruelties nearly so great; and yet the same great principles are involved that aroused to action our fathers in 1776. Revolution has followed revolution, but all to no avail, because from Cuba's peculiar position the armed vessels of Spain have closed her people in from all the world. Defeated often have they been, and put off with promises of reform which never were kept, and with promises of representation in the national cortes; yet their representatives knocking at the door have been laughed to scorn, and the entire Cuban has had no voice in the humblest affairs of government. Yet, with all disadvantages, the Cuban patriot has been brave and has fought a good fight. From the ranks of every city and hamlet, from every farm and plain, the blood of her patriots, and of innocent women and children, cry aloud for sympathy and for justice.

Her sons have inhaled the atmosphere of this liberty-loving country, and their sons have been enkindled with the fire which we have lighted. Cuba presents a long list of martyrs to liberty—brave, self-sacrificing and undaunted heroes who have fallen for their country's cause. Our close neighbor, we can almost hear her agonizing cry for help across the narrow channel, and the sounds of battle carrying the salvation of Cuba, or again sealing her defeat for years to come. In all this time those struggling freemen should have shown around them the protection, at least, that may come to recognized belligerents? Would it not be most filling that a people affording the greatest example of free government which the world has ever known should be the first to accord such rights to a people seeking that which we already have—a people geographically and through every commercial and industrial interest inseparably connected with our own and the other American republics?

There often comes a time in the lives of nations, as well as of men, when it becomes necessary to walk in now, untrodden paths; to brush aside the cobwebs of tradition which but obscure the view, to grasp great living thoughts, and meet the problems of a growing, progressive age—in short, to find a way or make it. France found a way to aid our struggling fathers in their midnight gloom, with scarce one star of hope to rift the overhanging cloud. Besides, we cannot ignore the fact that there are moral duties resting upon nations, which attimes rise superior to finespun technicalities and the cold logic of law, and that these moral obligations rest more imperatively upon some nations than upon others. Indifference and inactivity may discourage, may even delay, the coming triumph of the inevitable, but they are powerless to prevent it.

There is presented to us a question which we cannot well escape—a cry comes across the waters for sympathy and for aid to which we cannot much longer close our ears or hearts. This appeal comes direct to us as the chosen people, who have passed through the Red Sea of oppression and the wilderness of despair on and out into the good land of freedom, which we have occupied and in which we have waxed great and strong through the priceless heritage of independence won. There are appeals for help at times when it becomes almost a crime not to stretch out the hand with needed aid—when aid and encouragement mean salvation, life, peace and happiness, and their refusal is sorrow, suffering, degradation and death.

We are here as American citizens, loving freedom for itself, to reaffirm our faith in American liberty by expressing a warm sympathy for a people coming up out of the land of Egypt and out of the house of bondage. There may be some today who doubt the propfor fear it may offend or violate some international courtesy. Was Spain restrained by delicate scruples when in the early days of our great civil strife she interposed? The American citizen who could quench the burning sympathy in his heart for the oppressed and down trodden must needs be oblivious to the principles for which our fathers fought and on which our government is founded.

Erase from history our own declaration of independence and forget the hand which penned that immortal document, which declared "that when a long train of abuses and usurpations evinces a design to reduce the people under absolute despotism it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government." Forget, too, that Washington lived; that Lafayette crossed the ocean to bring aid and encouragement by word and deed to despairing patriots, and, with Steuben and De Kalb, shared the privations of camp and the dangers of the battlefield. But from memory Bunker Hill, the heroic suffering at Valley Forge and the triumph at Yorktown. Nay, forget that brave men at Antietam died, and close their eyes on the graves of sleeping heroes, from the north and from the south, all through the beautiful southland, who fell in the cause of freedom and in maintaining what they believed to be right. Nay, more, fold up yonder symbol of a great free nation and embrace its stars and stripes.

When Americans may suppress such sympathy, then may we listen for the death knell of freedom, and, fearing to voice the spirit which animates our breasts, brand us cowards all. We, as a government, with high regard for national honor and national dignity, may be reserved, conservative and diplomatic, but as individual citizens we may span the dividing waters with a hopeful, generous sympathy, and bid Godspeed to the Cuban patriot in his sublime hope and his holy ambition. His cause is just, the right shall prevail, and in God's own time Cuba will be free.

Her neck was bruised, and under the bed lay a towel, wound and twisted showing that it had been used to strangle the unfortunate woman.

IN ETERNITY, WHERE?

"And What Will Ye Do in the End Thereof?"

Evangelist Chapman Pleads With Sinners to Turn to Christ Before Death Closes in on Them.

"And what will ye do in the end thereof?"

The above were the words of Jeremiah, the prophet, uttered more than 2,400 years ago.

They were the words used by Dr. Chapman, the evangelist, as the text of his discourse at the Princess rink last night.

It was a wonderfully impressive and convincing sermon and held the audience present spell-bound listeners during the half hour that he occupied in its delivery.

It was a sermon that was intended to arrest the attention of the unconverted and turn their minds to thoughts of their condition after the grave had closed their earthly career.

"Where will you spend eternity?" was the question that Dr. Chapman asked again and again and pleaded with his hearers to decide before death came to shut the doors of Heaven against them forever and forever.

Now was the accepted time, he urged, to determine this great question of his soul's eternal salvation. Tomorrow may be too late. As long as the lamp of life holds out the vilest sinner may return and live through eternity with God, but when death comes with this question undecided the doom of the unrepentant is settled and he is lost forever.

The delivery of the sermon was preceded by a song service conducted by Professor Lowe, and during which the chorus choir sang a number of gospel hymns and Mr. B. F. Yarnelle and daughter, Miss Edith Yarnelle, sang a duet. The opening prayer, so earnest one and interesting for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the conversion of sinners, was offered by Rev. J. L. Leeper, the pastor of the Westminster church.

Dr. Chapman then made the announcements for the services today and for the Sunday evening service at the rink for one only, and spoke briefly about his satisfaction and pleasure at seeing so many present at the meetings. Coming through the storm as they did, it was the very best indication, he said, of the interest that the people of Fort Wayne are taking in the salvation of the souls of those about them. Then he briefly recited a number of requests since he had been in the city to preach on doctrinal questions. He would be forced to decline doing so because he came here to preach simply the gospel of Jesus Christ and to win souls for Him. He would preach Christ first, last and all the time without entering into the doctrinal differences between the churches.

Professor and Mrs. Lowe then sang a duet, after which Dr. Chapman read the text of his sermon, given above, and began the delivery of his discourse.

At the time Jeremiah was called to prophesy, he said the people of Jerusalem and Israel were in a desperate state. They were filled with sin, and the prophet did everything in his power to stem the tide of wickedness and turn the people back to God. When all else failed he pictured the final results of such a course of action and turned on them with the words of the text, "What will ye do in the end thereof?"

In order that you may understand the theme which I desire to urge upon you, let me transpose the words of Jeremiah and make them read, "Where will you spend eternity?" or make them shorter let me compress them into two words, "Eternity, where?"

Over in Delaware, Ohio, where I preached upon this subject, a skeptic wrote that he had heard me preach on this theme and these two words kept ringing in his ears until he could not rest, and he asked me to help him to an answer. A merchant in Erie, Pa., told me that he could get away from delivering the sermon but the words, "eternity, where?"

Did you ever think what these words mean? Ten thousand years from now and we will be somewhere. Where? When we consider that ten thousand times ten thousand years may pass and eternity will not have begun the thought is terrible—appalling. Where will you spend it? It all depends upon yourself. When I think the word means an eternity away from God and our nearest and best friends, I think it is the saddest in the human language, but when I think it means an eternity with Jesus Christ and those we love it becomes the sweetest ever lisped and I repeat over and over again, with a full heart, "Eternity, eternity, thy end shall never be."

There are those in this house tonight who have been seeking something to satisfy the longings of their souls, and who are asking their hunger, but they go on in their sins and do not turn to the Lord they will go on with this aching void in their hearts, trying to seek satisfaction from earthly things and never finding it. There is only one name under heaven that can satisfy this hunger, and that is the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Believe in Him and you will be satisfied now and satisfied in eternity, but refuse to accept Him as your Savior and you will go through eternity with remorse and unhappiness in your heart, for I believe that the damnation of the wicked is without end.

Dr. Chapman then addressed the young men in a few words. "I desire," he said, to put three questions to you. Is it because men are indifferent to eternity that they pay no heed to the question, where will you spend eternity? I do not think so. Are men indifferent to their condition in eternity because they are satisfied with the old life? I do not believe it. Is it from recklessness? One would almost think so when we see men remaining away from Christ with only one heart beat between this life and eternity. There is not a sinner in Fort Wayne who is satisfied with his condition. No man is satisfied away from God. The seat of the difficulty is found in a single word spelled with three letters. Your trouble is sin. When a man gives that up, God is willing to save him. I believe it is a grand thing to be a Christian for this world even if there was no hereafter.

Dr. Chapman closed with a most eloquent plea to the unconverted. Now at the end of this meeting, he said, I give you these two words: Eternity, where? Eternity, where? Fourteen years ago I was ordained a minister, and three years ago I entered this field of work, and in all that time have I so realized the actual presence of Christ as I feel that he is now in the city of Fort Wayne. Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. He is here. I feel His presence, and it seems as if I can almost see Him. Twill be an awful thing, friends, to go into eternity and know that while He was passing by He had been rejected. Oh, eternity, where? Eternity, where?"

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

DEBS RELEASED.

Marched Around the Public Square Behind a Band.

"Conscientiously Paid the Penalty"—Will Speak at Chicago Tonight on "Personal Liberty."

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Nearly 1,000 representatives of the various labor organizations of Chicago left on a special train of ten coaches over the Chicago & Great Western road, at Wood-stock, Ill., shortly after noon today, to give a reception to Eugene V. Debs, when he stepped forth a free man from the jail at that place this afternoon. Debs became really ended at midnight, but he preferred remaining in jail in order that the program arranged by himself and friends could be carried out.

"I have been punished," he said last night, "by conscientiously paying the penalty for doing what I considered to be my duty."

After a reception at the jail they and Debs marched around the public square to the music of a band and drum corps. Luncheon was then served before the return to Chicago.

Arrangements have been made for a meeting at Battery D tonight, at which Debs will speak on "Personal Liberty." Delegations from Cleveland, Cincinnati and other cities are looked for.

IN A DEAD-LOCK

Is the Base Ball League Over the Columbus Franchise.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—The Western Base Ball league is in a dead-lock over the Columbus franchise. There are four applicants for it, with Tom Loftus in the lead. Last night's session continued until 1 o'clock this morning.

At noon the session was resumed with little prospect of a termination today. J. W. Gunnells refused the Toledo franchise yesterday because he could not get a five year agreement, and it is likely that Omaha may yet land into the league, as there are no other applicants for the Toledo franchise.

Shot His Father.

COLUMBUS, Mo., Nov. 22.—Brigham J. Jefferies, a farmer living near Providence, died yesterday from a gun shot wound inflicted by his eighteen-year-old son, Joseph. The young man claims that the shooting was accidental and in this statement he is corroborated by an elder brother. Their sister, however, claims that the shot was fired with murderous intent. She declares that Joseph and her father quarrelled in the dining room, and that Joseph then seized a shotgun, which was taken from him by his brother. Joseph then ran out and set another gun, she says, and fired the fatal shot. The coroner's jury did not charge Joseph with murder.

WERE SELLING BEER.

Supt. Liggett Visits the Bob-O-Link Club Dance.

Police Call at Reese's Saloon—Mrs. Rogue in Two Weet—Bit Thing of Trouble.

Last night the Bob O Link club gave a dance at the Saengerbund hall. It was attended by a very large crowd. About 9 o'clock Police Superintendent Liggett dropped in to see how everything was going and was surprised to several white-aproned men behind a temporary bar serving beer to the crowd. Several kegs were on tap and the beer was being sold very rapidly. The superintendent immediately ordered the business stopped, which was done. To a SENTINEL reporter he said this morning that it was a flagrant violation of the law, and that he was very much surprised when he saw it.

A HOUSE OF TERROR.

The police station was filled last night by the crowd of lunatics who were driven to shelter by the cold and stormy weather. The "bum" room contained about twenty-five of them. This morning they were all obliged to go to work and clean up the station before they were liberated. In the crowd last night was one colored man.

ANOTHER CASE.

A new case of diphtheria was reported to the police this morning. It is at No. 169 Gay street.

IN VAN WERT.

David Moyer, the West Main street man who called at the police station a few days ago and inquired about his wife, who had left home on Monday and failed to return, called again and received some information last evening. The officers found that Mrs. Moyer had left her baby buggy at a house on Grand street and then took her child and went to Van Wert, Ohio. When Moyer called at the police station last night he was told of what the officers had learned. He said he was unable to account for his wife going to Van Wert, because she had no relatives there. He apparently suspected that there was another man in the case, because he remarked that he would go and see if a certain man was missing from a feed yard near his home and said that if he was, he thought that fact would explain the whole matter. He has not returned since he went to see about the man.

AT COLUMBIA CITY.

Captain Bongman, Sergeants Dasler and Jewell and Officers Strodel and Collins were in Columbia City today testifying before the grand jury in the Singer murder case at Darlen.

THE POLICE GALLEY.

Last evening the police called at the saloon of William Heine, on Clinton street, and chased out three women who were in the place drinking. The saloon proprietor to allow no wine rooms to operate in the city. Heine bought very wrathy over the visit of the police but the women were obliged to leave.

SENATOR HILL MAY MARRY.

Rumor Again Revived by His Leaving a Home in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—Is Senator Hill to marry? At all events he is going to keep house. He has leased a large house on I street, in the most fashionable quarter of Washington, and expects to take possession soon after the meeting of congress. He is either going to marry or is going to avoid the discomforts of hotel life in the capital. It is hard enough for married people to live at the hotels in Washington, but for bachelors hotel life is a burden, indeed. Senator Hill is not in Washington, though the rumor that he is about to marry has prevailed. Although the political atmosphere pretty thoroughly. None of his friends is in a position to throw any light on the report, but the fact remains that he has leased a residence built for two.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

Illustrated by Stereopticon Views at Princess Rink Tomorrow Night.

Tomorrow evening at the Princess rink Prof. and Mrs. Lowe will present the life of Christ in beautiful pictures and sweet songs, using stereopticon views to illustrate the different scenes in the life of the Saviour. A SENTINEL representative has witnessed this service of picture and song in another city and he cannot help but speak very highly of it.

HON. J. B. STOLL

May Be the Democratic Nominee for Governor.

SPECIAL TOMORROW.

In an interview at Washington, Hon. W. S. Holman, when asked who would be nominated for governor in Indiana, answered very promptly: "The nominee will be either John R. Stoll, of South Bend, or Gil. Shanklin, of Evansville."

Burned Fatally.

WILSON, N. C., Nov. 22.—Thomas Mabsand his two sons were burned fatally last night by a fire which destroyed their brandy distillery, near Bunleyy, in Stokes county. The fire originated from the singlings and lattings boiling over and catching fire. The burning fluid ran on the two sons, who were asleep on the floor. The house was locked up and the father and sons were unable to get out.

Killed Her Husband.

CAYUGA, Ala., Nov. 22.—W. H. Walker, a prominent planter, fifty years old, while on a violent spree, went home and threatened to kill his wife and child. The woman snatched up her child and her husband's pistol and fled to her sister's home, half a mile away. As Mr. Walker entered the door of her sister's home her husband attempted to shield her, when she shot him dead.

TAKING A RISK.

People Who Neglect to Make Improvement Payments.

An Important Matter That Should Not be Overlooked—Either City Hall Risks.

Deputy City Comptroller Evans remarked to The SENTINEL that there are a great many people in the city who are taking great chances of losing their property. Many property owners have taken advantage of the Barrett law, which gives them ten years in which to pay for street, sewer and sidewalk improvements, etc. The payments are made semi-annually, in the spring and fall, and if one payment becomes due and goes delinquent the total amount becomes due and can be collected. The law provides that the property can be sold to make these payments. Mr. Evans says there are a large number of property owners in the city who have allowed their payments to become delinquent and are running the risk of having their property sold away from them. It is an important matter, and people should not neglect making provisions for meeting the payments when they become due.

FINANCE COMMITTEE TO MEET.

The finance committee of the council will meet tonight to consider the transfer of $1,000 from one fund to another in the police department, as requested by the board of public safety. There may also be some other matters to be acted upon.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER

FROM LACK OF INFORMATION.

Doctors Are Too Reserved; A Woman Should Be Dealt With Openly.

Women are often allured to the physician's office, only too much from fear of the humiliation and anxiety.

Many medical men are vain, and it is a struggle for them to acknowledge not understand their ignorance. Hence they bluff, blush, flounder, and often wreck their lives through their unfortunate confidence.

In the treatment of female diseases men work from theory and it is not to be expected that they can treat so intelligently those complaints from which they have never suffered, as a woman can who has made the organism and diseases of her sex a life study.

Women afflicted with female diseases are wise in communicating promptly with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Their distressed condition is due to womb trouble, and their symptoms tell the story.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one remedy that removes the cause, and so establishes health, courage, and happiness. The druggists sell more of it than all other female medicines. Why?

The following short letter speaks for itself. Mrs. Parker is a very young wife; only twenty-one years old. She was suffering untold misery when she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. See the result.

Can evidence be stronger than this? "I desire in my duty to announce the fact to all my fellow-sufferers of all female complaints that your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me of all the pains and suffering I was enduring when I wrote you last May. I followed your advice to the letter, and the result is wonderful." — Mrs. CARA PARKER, Little Falls, Minn. Any druggist has it.

Must Stop Banking.

Secretary Carlisle delivered an important address at the annual banquet of the New York chamber of commerce on Tuesday evening last, in which he declared with emphasis that there could be no safe financial policy for this government until the legal tender greenbacks are retired, and the government entirely separated from the banking business. One of the first duties of the next congress will be to provide for a stable currency, and there can be no such thing in this country until the government is entirely separated from banking duties.

As long as it shall issue legal tender paper redeemable in gold, it must keep a large supply of gold idle in the treasury to maintain the credit of the government and assure the general acceptance of its paper; and with hundreds of millions of paper that can be gathered by speculative combinations any week to drain the treasury of its gold, and repeat the operation indefinitely, it is simply midsummer madness for the government to continue in the banking business.

The responsibility for establishing a sound financial policy rests now devolves upon the coming republican congress. If the leaders of the majority party are wise they will legislate first of all for the country, relying on the best service to the nation to be the best service to the party. The government must stop banking for the reason that the gold reserve must always be fluctuating and a constant menace to the credit of the government issue, and the time has come when patriotic men of all parties should unite to inaugurate a currency system to be accepted by the people and command credit for its full face in every part of the civilized world.

Who Will Be Elected?

Organized labor is strongly represented in Fort Wayne, and many of the members of the different societies represented in the American Federation of Labor are readers of The Sentinel. It is for this reason that we call attention today to an article which will be published in The Sentinel tomorrow, and which we feel sure will interest all the members of these organizations. It is also giving an account of the most important business which will come before the convention of the American Federation of Labor which is to meet in the city of New York on the 9th of December next. The convention is sure to be a spirited one. Many questions are coming up, the disposition of which will have much to do with the future of the organization. Possibly nothing more important will need to be considered than the choice of president. Last year at Denver John McBride, who for years had been head of the organized miners, was chosen in place of Samuel Gompers, who was the first president of the federation as at present organized, and had served continuously until that time. There are three prominent candidates for the position of president this year: Mr. McBride, Mr. Gompers and P. J. McGuire, the latter being the president of the Carpenter's union. In the article published in The Sentinel tomorrow we will print the pictures of these distinguished labor leaders and have something to say about the prospects of success in the convention of each of the candidates, and also speak about some of the most important questions which will come up for discussion at the meeting. The article will be one which will interest every member of organized labor.

The Woes of the Sultan.

It is understood in well-informed circles, as the cable correspondents gravely say, that the demonstration of the powers has "aroused" the sultan and that he is going to see whether he can not do something. The sultan would certainly be very lethargic, even for a Turk, if he were not aroused by all the prodding that has been given him lately, but his activity is not likely to be overwhelming.

The massacre of Christians in his dominions does not worry him. He either likes that, for Christians never did make good subjects to the Turk, and it is due as much to outside pressure as to inner change that the original Moslem ascendency has been at least nominally modified. But this pressure is becoming uncomfortable. From the moment that Islam ceased to advance, it recessarily began to decline, and now the Ottoman empire exists only by tolerance. The united powers of Christian Europe are responsible for it. They have kept the sultan in Constantinople with as other purpose than to keep each other out.

They have kept him there on the supposition that he could govern the region assigned to him, but with each generation his incompetence grows more conspicuous. His dominions have been reduced, and his misgovernment of what is left only grows worse. It has come to a pass now when it seems likely that the common opinion of the civilized world will compel the virtual deposition of the sultan and the administration of his empire under some sort of international agreement. Here is where the mutual distrust and jealousies of the powers come in again to hinder such agreement. It is easy to say that the sultan must go, but who is to take his place?

Contest for Positions.

The canvass for the principal offices at the disposal of the house of representatives, which opened in a slow and quiet fashion late week at Washington, is becoming quite animated as the time approaches for the republican caucus, which is announced for Saturday of next week. The elective offices of the house are those of clerk with a salary of $5,000; sergeant at arms, $4,500; doorkeeper, $3,000; postmaster, $2,500; chaplain, $900.

There are from two to seven candidates for each of these places, the highest number being in the race for chaplain. A majority of the candidates for the principal places have opened headquarters in the Ebbitt house and Willard's hotel, and their respective rooms are constantly thronged, notwithstanding comparatively few of the members of the house have arrived, the visitors being composed largely of those who hope to secure appointive positions under the elective officers.

There are only two candidates for the house clerkship. They are ex-Congressman Thomas J. Henderson, of Illinois, and ex-Congressman Alex McDowell, of Pennsylvania. Both failed of renomination last year. Mr. McDowell began his canvass a year ago and as soon as it became apparent that the republicans would have the house. It is claimed that he has the solid support of the New York and Pennsylvania delegations. This claim is made the basis of opposition on the part of Mr. Henderson's adherents, as is also the fact that the speakership is conceded to Mr. Reed, who also comes from an eastern state. "We are not," said Congressman Cannon, who is a strong supporter of General Harrison, "putting our claims on sectional grounds, but we cannot overlook the fact that there are 145 republican members west of the Ohio line to ninety east of it. The speakership who all concede to Mr. Reed, of Maine, because of availability and fitness, carries with it nine-tenths of the official honors of the house. It would seem with such a large majority of the republican membership the west should be conceded the clerkship." Mc-Dowell's friends claim, however, that he will secure a large vote both in the west and the south. They assert that they will secure the entire delegation from Missouri, and there are negotiations in progress which they say may give them other solid state delegations from that geographical section.

Capt. H. McKee, of Indiana, secretary of the republican congressional campaign committee, and Mr. B. Russell, of Missouri, are so far the only announced candidates for the office of sergeant-at-arms. Each has his state delegation behind him and Mr. Russell is understood to be working in connection with the McDowell forces. Mr. McKee has, however, the advantage of a more extended and political acquaintance. There has been talk among members of the Minnesota delegation of again bringing out Mr. Reed, of that state, who was a defeated candidate for this office in the Fifty-first congress, for sergeant-at-arms. A. Mylrie, of Tennessee and T. J. McGuire, the latter being the president of the Carpenter's union. In the article published in The Sentinel tomorrow we will print the pictures of these distinguished labor leaders and have something to say about the prospects of success in the convention of each of the candidates, and also speak about some of the most important questions which will come up for discussion at the meeting. The article will be one which will interest every member of organized labor.

The Woes of the Sultan.

It is understood in well-informed circles, as the cable correspondents gravely say, that the demonstration of the powers has "aroused" the sultan and that he is going to see whether he can not do something. The sultan would certainly be very lethargic, even for a Turk, if he were not aroused by all the prodding that has been given him lately, but his activity is not likely to be overwhelming.

The massacre of Christians in his dominions does not worry him. He either likes that, for Christians never did make good subjects to the Turk, and it is due as much to outside pressure as to inner change that the original Moslem ascendency has been at least nominally modified. But this pressure is becoming uncomfortable. From the moment that Islam ceased to advance, it recessarily began to decline, and now the Ottoman empire exists only by tolerance. The united powers of Christian Europe are responsible for it. They have kept the sultan in Constantinople with as other purpose than to keep each other out.

They have kept him there on the supposition that he could govern the region assigned to him, but with each generation his incompetence grows more conspicuous. His dominions have been reduced, and his misgovernment of what is left only grows worse. It has come to a pass now when it seems likely that the common opinion of the civilized world will compel the virtual deposition of the sultan and the administration of his empire under some sort of international agreement. Here is where the mutual distrust and jealousies of the powers come in again to hinder such agreement. It is easy to say that the sultan must go, but who is to take his place?

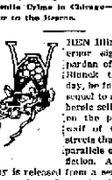
A HERO AT HEART.

WOULD HAVE GONE TO PRISON FOR ANOTHER.

THE ORPHAN BOY WHO HAD NO ONE TO CHEER FOR HIM.

Would Have Saved a Companion by Pleading Guilty—Pathetic Story of Juvenile Crime in Chicago—The Governor to the Rescue.



WHEN Illinois' governor signed the pardon of William Illinock the other day, he furnished a sequel to a story of heroic self-sacrifice on the part of a waif of Chicago's streets that has few parallels outside of fiction. A 16-year-old boy is released from a sentence of forty years' confinement within the gray walls of Joliet, though it is feared that his liberty will not save him from life as consumptive's grave. But if he does not save it will be in freedom and not as a convict. The boy returned to Chicago last week and was met at the railway station by those who secured his pardon. He was very weak, but hopes of his recovery here not been abandoned.

Governor Altgeld's action was due to the influence of two prominent Chicagoans, one a lawyer and the other a banker, Luther Laflin Mills and Byron L. Smith. Mr. Smith, who is president of the Northern Trust company, was particularly active in the boy's behalf and it is due to his kindly interest more than that of any other one man that Willie Blunck was taken from a felon's cell. Yet until after the pardon was granted the kind-hearted president had not set eyes on the waif whom he has so well befriended.

While Mr. Smith resolutely refuses to talk of his protege or what he has done for him, it will do for him. It is known that he was attracted to the boy by hearing how he had offered to take all the blame for a murder for which he and a young companion were on trial. Over two years ago Willie Blunck, then 14 years old, and Tom Lavelle, aged 16, engaged in a fight with Albert Achreth, a Pole. Both boys were intoxicated, and Lavelle drew and fired the gun with an old pistol. Young Lavelle had parents and a home and friends, while Blunck was an orphan. When the boys were arrested and brought to trial everything was done to save the Lavelle boy, but the evidence went steadily against him. His father and mother were in the deepest distress. One day during the trial Willie Blunck called the young lawyer whom the court had appointed to defend him, and urged that the crime be all laid upon him.

"You may father and mother are taking on over his trouble, but I haven't no father or mother or anybody to care what becomes of me," he said. "Let him go and put it all on me."

The young attorney was much moved by this proposal, though he refused to follow his boyish client's unselfish wish. Both lads were sentenced to forty years in the penitentiary. Lavelle's relatives moved for a new trial, but Willie Blunck could not, and ere long he went to work in the rattan and reed department at Joliet. He was a "good" convict, and worked steadily until about two months ago, when he was confined to the hospital by the penitentiary physician because of consumption. He has been gaining slightly of late, and with changed surroundings may recover.

One of the women who visits the Chicago criminal court and county jail, Miss Jennie McLaughlin, took pity on the friendless orphan and did what she could to cheer him. She had heard how he offered to suffer in the place of his companion, and after he had been taken to Joliet she related the story to a friend. This friend was so impressed with the short recital that he wrote an account of the fact to a morning newspaper. His communication chanced to come to the notice of Banker Smith.

"A boy who will offer to do what this boy is credited with cannot be really bad," said Mr. Smith. So he told his cousin, Luther Laflin Mills, what he had read, and together they investigated the case. The managers of the state reformatory were communicated with, and they made personal investigations. Then they signed a petition for pardon to the governor. All these steps took time, but finally everything was done, and Willie Blunck now has a chance, if his health will permit, to take a man's place in life.

His first benefactress, Miss McLaughlin, went to the penitentiary to receive him on his release. Mr. Smith will have him placed in a good home, where he will be well cared for. The future disposition of the orphan depends on whether or not he is able to recover from the malady with which he is afflicted.

SET FIRE TO THE JAIL.

Incendiary Act of Fanatician Reported from Mexico.

News comes from Tezcuaco, Mexico, inhabited by Indians and mestizos (half breeds), that ten persons were burned there as heretics by order of the auxiliary town judge. The claims he was acting according to the will of God, manifested to him in an extraordinary vision, accompanied by certain indications of divine wrath against heretics and people leading immoral lives.

The auxiliary judge said: "I obeyed the divine command and ordered out my alguacilillos (constables), and we took those sinners from their beds and dragged them in the darkness of night, weeping and wailing, to the jail. When they were locked securely in I ordered the alguacilillos to set the building on fire."

Twenty-one arrests were made, although the fanatical mob threatened death to the authorities. The prisoners, securely bound around the arms and chained together, were marched to Molango, where a judicial investigation will take place. The whole population of Tezcuaco appears mad. All believe the auxiliary judge was commissioned by the Almighty and the saints to destroy evil-doers. They point to the pile of bones on which they pretend to see miraculously traced outline forms of the saints who, on advising the judge to burn the heretics, left their images. The community is nothing but an open-air madhouse.

NO ONIONS FOR HER.

An Illinois Schoolmarm Who Objected to Offensive Odors.

The public schools of the little town of Pecatonica, Ill., have been greatly stirred up for several days, and for a time a merry war was threatened. Miss Foster, one of the teachers, requested the pupils not to eat onions, which many of them were in the habit of doing, as the odor was offensive to others who did not indulge in them. The request was considered an infringement on their rights, and many of the pupils took to eating them, some even bringing raw onions to school and distributing them around among the scholars, and they were thrown in the wood box and placed in the desks. The red of embitterment was applied, and the parents of many of the pupils have severely censured the teacher for her demand. The teacher says she published the pupils only for information, and not for eating onions. The matter has stirred up much feeling.

A Merchant Attacked by a Shark.

The Mikado, a coasting steamer, was caught in a violent storm in the Queen Charlotte sound on her last trip north. While the waves were sweeping over the deck and the captain feared that they might never reach port alive, a shark, over thirty feet long, made its appearance directly in front of them and appeared to be preparing to charge the steamer.

Capt. Beck could not resist a shot from his rifle at the huge fish. His aim was true and a rifle ball was imbedded in the head of the man-eater. The shark, furiously lashing the water, retreated several yards and, turning on its back, charged directly at the little steamer. The shock was so severe when the boat and fish met that those on board said it felt as if they had struck a rock. The boat quivered from stem to stern and swayed even more fiercely than in the storm. The shark, however, had had enough and, retreating, sank out of sight.—San Francisco Chronicle.

MRS. "BARNEY" BARNATO.

Wife of the World's Richest Man and Her Interesting Husband.

Much as current interest now centers in Barney Barnato, the multi-millionaire monnate of the South African mining region; a more tender sentiment will be entertained toward his beautiful wife and their two interesting children, Primrose and Jack.

Mrs. Barnato was born in Africa, and she is both beautiful and charming. A devoted wife and mother, she nevertheless finds time for not such social obligations as her position in life demands, and to those who come within her favor, she is a most lovable woman. The fabulous wealth of her husband puts within her reach every luxury that even the feminine mind can conceive, and she wears the distinction which such wealth confers with an unostentatious grace that makes her a queen among women. It is not surprising, therefore, that her husband escapes from the exciting turmoil of money-making when over the opportunity presents itself, or that he is happiest and appears at his best when, having cast aside the cares of business, he enters upon the pleasant enjoyment of home life which he shares with his wife and children. These favored parents are as blessed in their family surroundings as they are opulent in material interests. They have two lovely children, a three-year-old daughter named "Leah Primrose," and a baby boy aged two years, christened "Laddie Rosebery," but always called "Jack." Primrose is a pretty child, and a great favorite.

A FLY RUN.

The Clover Leaf and the I., D, & W. Start One.

The Pennsylvania Wants to Freeze out the Pullman Company.—Finding's Owners Pay Us or Wait.

At 10 o'clock this morning a special train left the Union station, in Indianapolis, for St. Louis, over the new St. Louis line, via the Indiana, Decatur and Western and Clover Leaf routes. An attempt will be made to lower the running time record between Indianapolis and St. Louis. The train consisted of one baggage car, two Wagner sleepers and General Manager Fierce's private car. On board the train were the line officials, newspaper men and a large number of St. Louis merchants, the latter coming to Indianapolis especially to make the return trip. The distance over the line is 238 miles. It is expected that the 5?er will reach St. Louis at 4 o'clock.

FIVE OF THEM CROOKS.

Five of the nine members of the board of managers who are to control the new Government Traffic association are: Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Leland Stanik; Vanderbilt system, H. J. Hayden; Chesapeake and Ohio and Big Four, Oscar G. Murray; Pennsylvania system, D. G. Berry; Erie, Geo. E. Cochran. The remaining four members are to be announced soon, or when selected.

A YARD CLERK'S WIFE MAKES INQUIRY.

The wife of a yard clerk writes the Indianapolis Journal as follows: "In an article headed 'Railway Men's Pay,' the Journal speaks of the good pay received by railway men. No doubt the trainman do receive good wages. My husband is yard clerk in one of the freight yards of a large railway running into this city. He goes to his work at 8:30 a. m. every day in the week, and most of the time does not leave it until 7 and sometimes 8 p. m., and receives but $60 per month. Besides keeping his family he has to pay rent out of that sum. Now, yard men work just as hard as trainmen, but their pay is much less. Isn't there great injustice in this?"

TWO RAILWAY MAGNATE'S HERE.

John Jacob Astor, owner of the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western road, and Dr. W. S. Webb, president of the Wagner Palace Car company, and also a Findlay stockholder, were in the city a few minutes yesterday afternoon. They traveled in their special car, "Elsmere," and had just completed a thorough inspection of the line. The road will soon have an eastern outlet and will then become a much more important line than it is at present. The "Elsmere" and its distinguished occupants left for Toledo over the Wabash. The train was in charge of Conductor Driver and hauled by engine 332, with Engineer McMurray at the throttle, running as the second section of No. 46. Mr. Astor and Dr. Webb alighted and walked about the depot platform until the Findlay engine was exchanged for a Wabash engine, when they reentered their car and shortly afterwards left.

WANTS TO OPERATE ITS OWN SLEEPERS.

The impression prevails in railway circles that the Pennsylvania company is endeavoring to cancel its contract with the Pullman company and, if successful, will operate its own sleeping cars, as it does its dining cars. This would have been strengthened by the recent movement of the railway company to compel the Pullmen people to make a lower rate on upper than lower berths in their sleeping cars. E. A. Ford, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, says they had taken the action because people who paid a certain rate for lower berths would not pay a similar rate for the upper berths, and as a result too many Pullman cars were being hauled without enough passengers in them to pay expenses.

AN OLD-FASHIONED SCRAPPER.

No. 216, one of the old Rhea engines built in the Pittsburg shops in 1873, twenty-two years ago, is being "scrapped" today. The boiler will be stripped of all its fixtures and sent to Crestline, where it will furnish steam for a stationary engine in a water station. The "Rhea" engines, although remarkable for their speed and hauling capacity for so light a locomotive, have outlived their usefulness and only two or three remain. They are too light for the passenger or freight service of today and for some years have been hauling stone and gravel trains. There were twenty-two of these engines built in the Fort Wayne shops in 1873.

CONSOLIDATED FREIGHTS.

"I well remember an account of a remarkable slow run made over a portion of the Lake Shore road upon strap rails in the early '50's," said M. D. Joans, now chief dispatcher on the Ohio Central lines. "The story was related by the lamented Fred Avery, of blessed memory, who was in the employ of the Michigan Southern division of the Lake Shore for forty years as engineer and conductor.

"A passenger train left Toledo one afternoon in a snow storm and after several hours struggle had made about sixteen miles and were stalled in the vicinity of a log house, where the train crew and the few passengers happily found accomodations for the night by 'spooning' closely. It was unnecessary to protect the train, as it was the only outfit the company possessed at that time.

"At daylight the next morning Fred shouldered a stick of dry basswood, which, the kindly former donated, and in due time had steamed up, and after breakfast a fresh start was made. Two miles were covered when darkness came upon them and they retreated to the same log house where they had lodged the previous night, and the following night were able to reach Adrian, having covered the distance of thirty-three miles in three days.

"In due time the old strap rail gave way to the iron rail and improvements in locomotives kept pace. The steam gauge was invented, the first one placed upon an engine in the Adrian shops having been such a source of wonderment to the night hostler a son of the Emerald Isle, that he asked Engineer Avery to go with him and see the blackest clock in America, on Mike Hart's engine, and remarked that he couldn't see how Mike could tell the time by such a clock as that."

BRIEF MENTION.

D. L. Mason, fireman on the Pittsburg road, is off duty with a lame back.

Pittsburg engine 225 left the Pittsburg shops this morning, after being repaired.

Blacksmith Peter Ohnhausen, of the East shops, is off duty on account of sickness.

P. E. Albers is one of the absentees at the Pittsburg shops today, he being sick with a cold.

Irvine Henschel, of the Pittsburg roundhouse, is sick. He has been unable to work since Saturday.

After an attack of pleurisy, Machinist Frank Schram resumed his duties in the Pittsburg round house this morning.

Thomas Donahue, engine hostler at the Pittsburg roundhouse, resumed work this morning, after a week's illness.

Joseph D. White resumed work in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning, though still far from being a well man.

Blacksmith Fred Lunz, of the Pittsburg shops, is attending a wedding of a relative today and his place at the forge is vacant.

Sam Eckelberger, of the Pittsburg roundhouse, who had a foot hurt several days ago, was able to resume work this morning.

Switch engine No. 9 went into the Pittsburg shops this morning for repairs. No. 237 will do switch duty in the place of No. 9.

John Franke, jr., of the Pittsburg machine shop, will leave for Mansfield, Ohio, in a few days. He has relatives residing in that city.

Sam T. Jacks and his bull fighters left for the west over the Wabash this morning. They will stop at Lafayette and give an exhibition en route.

Foreman John Kretsinger, of the Fitzburg planing mills, is up and about the house and no doubt will be able to resume work next Monday.

Fireman D. Overholt, of the Pittsburg road, left this morning for Philadelphia, where, so it is believed, he will be married to a charming young lady.

E. B. Taylor, general superintendent of transportation of the Pennsylvania lines, passed through the city in his special car on No. 8 last evening, en route east.

George L. Gordon is slowly recovering from his serious attack and will no doubt be able to resume charge of affairs at the Pittsburg baggage room next week.

Miss Mollie Forbing, of Decatur, Ind., who was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. H. Franke, of No. 306 South Hanna street, several days, returned home yesterday.

S. K. Renfrew, one of the veterans in the Pennsylvania shops, is reported to be a little better at present than he has been for many months. Mr. Renfrew has not been able to work since last winter.

G. Waldsmith, janitor at the Pittsburg planing mills, resumed his duties this morning, after a two weeks' absence on account of quarantine restrictions which were thrown around him.

His son had the diphtheria, but has recovered.

Conductor Dan Shea, of the Nickel Plate, has reported for duty after a few days' rest.

Nickel Plate Fireman Charles Davidson and John Lalandee are taking a few days' rest.

John Gribbins went to Evansville, Ind., this morning to equip a steamboat with electric lights.

Fred Sawyer and E. H. Porter are setting up the dynamo and wiring Rostetter's new factory for electric lights.

Joseph Dosbl, day caller at the Nickel Plate yard office, was sick yesterday and his duties were attended to by H. Baum.

The Wabash lines earned in the second week of November $244,652, an increase over the corresponding week of 1894 of $12,277.

Mr. Green, who has charge of the electric light station at Portland, Ind., was here yesterday, purchasing some electrical apparatus.

Theodore Lincoln, machinist at the Wabash shops, struck himself above the right eye with a sledge yesterday, inflicting a painful wound.

H. E. Wagner, who was visiting friends in the country, resumed his engine duties on the Pittsburg road this morning. He is a fireman.

Conductors W. B. Kitzelman and Frank Stone are taking advantage of a lull in freight traffic to attend to some private business. Both are Nickel Plate employes.

Thus far this year the Pennsylvania has purchased for its western lines four thousand new cars, and for the lines east of Pittsburg but 1,500. Of the cars purchased 2,500 are coal cars and 2,000 box cars.

August Schmeizer, who has had charge of the testing department of the electric works at night, has commenced working in the daytime, the company not being able to get castings fast enough to keep the force going night and day.

The Joe Jefferson company will pass through the city tomorrow morning, en route from Pittsburg to Grand Rapids. They will have a special car, which will come in over the Pennsylvania road and be transferred to the Grand Rapids and Indiana road.

The most important shipments from the electric works today were an 1,800-light incandescent machine to the Wellsboro Electric Light company, of Wellsboro, Pa.; an eight-light arc machine to Haverhill, Mass., and a 600-light incandescent dynamo to Ludogo, Ind.

Pittsburg switch engine 119 was thrown from the track in the east yard at 4 o'clock this morning by a broken switch and went crosswise of two or three tracks. The wreck crew was called out and worked until 8:30 o'clock to get the engine back on the rails. Engineer Charles Sweeney and Fireman Frank Winget were the crew on No. 119

George W. Holliday, of the Foster Furniture store, and a resident of the Eighth ward, was at the head of the movement which culminated in the mass meeting at Vogely's hall last evening. If the citizens of the east end succeed in getting the much needed bridge across the Maumee river, they will owe Mr. Holiday a vote of thanks for the part he has taken in the matter.

U. S. Meeks, William Swank and Harry Fisher, of the electric works, were initiated into Wayne Tent, No. 54, K. O. T. M., last evening and have not altogether recovered composure as yet. By the appearance of the boys this morning, we judge the goat had been feeding upon dynamite for a week or two and when they tackled him he exploded. Wayne Tent now has 155 members.

A. Parker, a well known farmer residing six miles from the city, in St. Joseph township, and some companions arrived home from Wisconsin on No. 8 last evening, bringing the carcasses of five deer, which they had killed. Mr. Parker met with a painful accident while hunting. He slipped while walking on a log and fell, striking the log in such a manner as to fracture three of his ribs.

Immigrant business over the Pennsylvania lines is now the heaviest for some years, but it don't pass over the Fort Wayne branch. For some inexplicable reason the company sends this business over the Panhandle, though its natural route is the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago.

One of the happiest conductors on the Nickel Plate is George McCormack, whose wife recently presented him with a daughter. The new arrival swells the number of children in that family to six, and all are boys but one.

The amount of cash the Union Pacific now has on hand begins to trouble the receivers, and they are asking the courts to act more promptly in ordering disbursements, the cash on hand now having reached $10,000,000 and daily increasing.

It is stated that Joseph Ramsey is to assume the duties of general manager of the Wabash on December 1, instead of January 1, as had been proposed. Mr. Hays goes to the Grand Trunk January 1, and wants a short rest, and the successor to Mr. Ramsey is already on the field to manage affairs of the St. Louis Terminal company.

The Monon shops at Lafayette are practically completed and have cost as a plant $400,000, of which sum the city of Lafayette contributed $100,000. The works are not yet in full operation, but already have three hundred or more men at work. The machinery is all of the most modern and approved type and not only can repair work be done but an engine built entire.

Samuel Goss was buried in Zanesville on Tuesday. He was one of the oldest passenger conductors on the Cincinnati and Muskingum Valley road. He began his career as train boy and had reached the position of passenger conductor in 1852, which position he held until 1891, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis, which, in time, was followed by others, resulting in death.

It is very fortunate for the railroad companies that the present snow storm did not come last week, when there was so much freight in transit. It would have caused the worst kind of a blockade. Last week Nickel Plate freight engines hauled trains of thirty to thirty-five loaded cars. Last night a conductor who had only twenty-two cars found them too heavy for his engine and had to leave two of them at Argos. The snow at that point was ten inches deep.

"Winning the Chickens Up"

There is a pretty little girl of 5 years in northwest Baltimore who has been tenderly raised. Her mother has watched her against the least acts of violence or cruelty and she is in ignorance of the methods employed in killing fowls for the table.

A few days ago, unknown to the careful parent, the little girl strayed into the rear yard of her home, where a servant was killing a number of chickens for dinner, by wringing their necks. The child watched the proceedings with great interest for several minutes, and then in a glow of excitement went to her mother.

"Mamma!" she cried, "just come and see the fun. Mary is winding the chickens up."—Baltimore Sun.
